

Rochester Road To Park or Causes Discussion Not to Park In Supervisors

County Legislature Votes to Build Road From Kingston-Elleville Highway to Kyserville—Supervisor Shults Withdraws Motion Inviting Comptroller to Investigate County Affairs.

Some twenty-five residents of the town of Rochester were in attendance at the meeting of the board of supervisors Thursday evening when the question of which road in the town would be built as a part of the town's highway system came up for considerable discussion. Supervisor Markle of Rochester wanted the road from Kerhonkson through Metacomb and Samsonville, which joins on the road now under construction in the town of Olive, built in preference to the road from the Elleville-Kingston road to Kyserville station. He desired a substitution of 29a for 29b. The question brought forth several arguments and the board finally voted to build 29b from the Elleville-Kingston road through to Kyserville.

During the session Supervisor Shults, who seconded Mr. Markle's amendment calling for the building of road 29a, offered a resolution to the effect that the state comptroller be invited to come down and investigate the county affairs, especially the board of supervisors. Verbal fireworks ensued.

Clark DeWitt read a communication from Mayor Dempsey on appointment of William T. Moyle as supervisor of the Ninth ward to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Supervisor Peter Fox.

Appropriations for Bridges.

Appropriations were made for two bridges and approaches on the Saugerties-Woodstock road, in the town of Woodstock. Bridge No. 4 to cost $5,000, the county's share being $2,415; bridge No. 5 to cost $10,500, the county's share being $3,750, the approaches to cost $3,350.

Also for bridge on West Hurley-Woodstock road, No. 1, in town of Woodstock, costing $20,800, the county's share being $13,520. The bridge to have a 60 foot span, 22 feet wide with five foot sidewalk.

Also bridge on the Saugerties-Woodstock road in the town of Saugerties, costing $47,400, the county's share being $16,500. Seventy foot span, 22 feet wide with five foot walk.

Also bridge on the Kingston-Elleville road in the town of Wawarsing, costing $59,200, the county's share being $20,720. 140 foot span, 22 feet wide with five foot walk.

Forest Glen Road on Map.

On petition of the town board of Plattkill and on resolution of Supervisor Wilkins, the Forest Glen road from Modena to Plattkill was placed on the county road map to be designated as 23a.

The tax of D. B. Humphrey of Wawarsing amounting to $15.76 on an assessment of $2,850 in the Wawarsing lighting district, was ordered cancelled on motion of Supervisor Rippet of Wawarsing as the property is not included in the lighting district.

Supervisor Schantz moved the resolution adopted May 8, 1927, appropriating and allotting motor vehicle money for road purposes be rescinded. County Attorney Groves explained that there was a question as to legality of the resolution. Motion carried.

Extra Road Money Apportioned.

A resolution apportioning $3,000, levied and assessed on the county, between Denning and Rochester for extra road money, was carried. Denning will get $1,000 and Rochester $2,000.

Resolution to Meet Road Change.

Supervisors Schantz, Avery and Dunsberry offered a resolution similar to the one adopted last May appropriating $55,440 state money, $35,499 county money, $35,582 motor vehicle fees and $35,537.67 thereafter appropriated by the county for road purposes. The difference in the resolution and the one rescinded was that provision was made for paying foremen, and the additional sums were allotted Denning and Rochester and road 23a was changed to road 23-b in the town of Rochester. It was the change in the road in the town of Rochester that caused the storm of protest.

Supervisor Markle of Rochester offered the amendment changing the road from 23-b as mentioned in the new resolution to 23-a which he contended was the one the people of the town wanted built first. This road he contended would benefit more people. It would be six miles in length and connect the town of Olive road now being built with Kerhonkson and make a direct road through from Shokan to Gardiner.

Rochester Residents Heard.

County Attorney Groves explained that the road as laid out in the resolution offered would serve a great number of people who pay daily visits to the Kyserville creamery. It was then that Supervisor Shults asked permission of the board to allow the citizens of Rochester to be heard. Several took advantage of the offer.

On roll call on the amendment, it was lost with a vote of 15 ayes and 17 noes.

The original motion was then carried 18 to 14.

Supervisor Shults's Resolution.

Supervisor Shults of Saugerties offered a resolution inviting the state comptroller to come to Kingston and

Secretary Hoover Sends Message To Convention

Washington, June 15 (AP)—Secretary Hoover today sent the following message to George H. Moses, chairman of the Republican National Convention at Kansas City:

"I have your telegram and I sincerely appreciate the confidence which the party has shown in me and the honor bestowed upon me.

"You convey too great a compliment when you say I have earned the right to the Presidential nomination. No man can establish an obligation upon any part of the American people. My country owes me no debt. It gave me, as it gives every boy and girl, a chance. It gave me schooling, independence of action, opportunity for service and honor. In no other land could a boy from a country village, without inheritance or industrial friends, look forward with unbounded hope.

"My whole life has taught me what America means. I am indebted to my country beyond any human power to repay. It conferred upon me the mission to administer America's response to the appeal of afflicted nations during the war. It has called me into two cabinets of two Presidents. By these experiences I have observed the burdens and responsibilities of the greatest office in the world. That office touches the happiness of every home. It deals with the peace of nations. No man could think of it except in terms of solemn consecration.

"You ask me for a message:

"A new era and new forces have come into our economic life and our setting among nations of the world. These forces demand of us constant study and effort. If prosperity, peace and contentment shall be maintained, this convention, like those which have preceded it for two generations, have affirmed the principles of our party and defined its policy upon the problems which now confront us. I stand upon that platform. At a later date I shall discuss it fully, but in the meantime I may well say that under the principles the victory of the party will assure national defense, maintain economy in the administration of government, protect American workmen, farmers and business men alike, from competition arising out of lower standards of living abroad, foster individual initiative, insure stability of business and employment, promote our foreign commerce and develop our national resources. You have manifested a deep concern in the problems of agriculture. You have pledged the party to support specific and constructive relief upon a nationwide scale backed by the resources of the federal government. We will and must find sound solution that will bring security and contentment to this great section of our people.

"But the problems of the next four years are more than economic; in a profound sense they are moral and spiritual. This convention has sounded a note of moral leadership. 'Shall the world have peace?' Shall prosperity in this nation be more thoroughly distributed? Shall we build steadily toward the ideal of equal opportunity to all our people: shall there be secured that obedience to law which is the essential assurance of life of our institutions? Shall honesty and righteousness confirm the confidence of the people in their institutions and their laws?

"Government must contribute to leadership in answer to these questions. The government is more than administration; it is power for leadership and cooperation with the forces of business and cultural life in city, town and countryside. The presidency is more than executive responsibility; it is the inspiring symbol of all that is highest in America's purposes and ideals.

"It is vital to the welfare of the United States that the Republican party should continue to administer the government.

"It is essential that our party should be continued in organization and in strength in order that it may perpetuate its great principles in our national life.

"If elected by my fellow countrymen I shall give the best within me to advance the moral and material welfare of all our people and uphold the traditions of the Republican party, so effectively exemplified by Calvin Coolidge."

(Signed)

"HERBERT HOOVER."

Farmers Carry

Fight to Houston

Kansas City, June 15 (AP)—Defeated in their attempt to write the equalization fee principle into the Republican party platform, farm leaders of the middlewest plan to carry their fight to the Democratic convention at Houston.

Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton, Minn., a delegate to the Republican convention, who made a speech on the floor in behalf of the minority farm plank, attacked the convention farm action here in a statement today and said his group would go to the Texas conclave in an effort to obtain the relief "denied them" by the Republicans.

"I am speaking for the farmers," he said, "when I say they must accept the vote on the farm relief plank as notice to them that the Republican party is not big enough to take them into the protective system and that their vote is not regarded as necessary to party success."

Hoover Nominated On First Ballot By Overwhelming Majority

Receives 294 More Than the Necessary Majority—Lowden Withdraws As a Candidate—Convention Stages Big Demonstration For Hoover—Platform Adopted—Nomination of Candidate For Vice President Taken Up This Afternoon.

HERBERT HOOVER

Kansas City, June 15 (AP)—The overwhelming choice of his party convention, Herbert Hoover is the Republican presidential nominee of 1928.

His nomination was voted late last night on the first ballot in a landslide that piled up at his feet nearly four-fifths of the entire vote of the convention or 294 more than the necessary 543 majority. The alliance against him collapsed and scattered and his chief opponent, Frank O. Lowden, withdrew entirely, disappointed and dissatisfied with the party platform plank on farm relief.

Selection of a nominee for second place was left to today's final session of the big party conclave, called together at noon after Republican leaders had sifted over a score of candidates at numberless confabs throughout Kansas City's downtown hotel section and had sought the advice of Hoover himself in Washington.

Once it has come to an agreement on the vice presidential nomination the convention will be ready to adjourn. A few hours before it made its choice for head of the ticket it had completed adoption of a platform modeled on the Coolidge style of political architecture with a few extra buttresses here and there to fortify against the special strains of this particular presidential year.

Lowden Starts For Home.

How serious the farm relief dispute may yet become was a subject of speculation everywhere as the delegates prepared to separate. After sending his message of withdrawal to the convention, Mr. Lowden boarded a train for his home at Oregon, Ill., without making a further statement or sending his congratulations to the successful candidate.

One of the other farm leaders who had tried in vain to put the party on record as favoring the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill said they were preparing to carry their battle to the Democratic Convention in Houston on June 25.

Farm Plank Adopted 3 to 1.

The administration farm plank, which led to Lowden's withdrawal, proposes a program of "economic equality" for the farmer but makes no mention of the McNary-Haugen bill or its equalization fee. This plank was given a three to one preference vote by the convention itself.

In his message of withdrawal, read to the convention in place of the speech that was to have placed him in nomination, Lowden said that in his opinion the plank adopted did not contain the guarantee agriculture must have to save it from ruin and was so disappointing that he would not care to be a candidate on the platform as it stands.

Delegates Go to Hoover Standard.

Lowden's elimination was followed by the accession of many of his delegates to the Hoover standard, although 74 of the 250 or so that had been credited to him stuck to the captain's ship and voted for Lowden despite his withdrawal. Out of the 1,084 votes cast, Hoover had in the end 537, with only 543 needed to be nominated. Most of the rest were scattered among Curtis, Watson and Norris with none of them having enough to match Lowden's 74.

President's Name Presented.

Despite further personal word from President Coolidge that he did not want his name before the convention he was nominated formally by Representative Ralph Cole of Ohio and 17 votes were cast for him—13 from Illinois and four from Ohio.

Hoover Forces Make Jubilee.

The nomination was voted by a convention which had undergone a great change since its drab and uninteresting opening last Tuesday. The Hoover people came to the night session manifestly determined to make a jubilee of it, while the remnants of the opposing coalition, realizing the battle was all over, were plainly disposed to keep a stiff upper lip and see it through.

Hoover Demonstration Lasts 20 Minutes.

Repeatedly during the hours taken up with nominating and seconding out of hand, a Hoover demonstration of more than 20 minutes swept the floor at the very beginning of the speech placing him in nomination, with delegates parading through the narrow aisles, singing and shouting and whooping it up for their man in the most approved convention style.

A similar ovation greeted the actual presenting of Hoover's name at the end of the speech and there was a deafening thunderclap of cheering when the result of the ballot was announced toward midnight.

Ovation For Other Candidate.

Curtis of Kansas also was boosted with all the might and main of the long-limbed delegation from the sun-baked state, who were joined by the delegates of Oklahoma in a parade around the hall. There were lesser ovations for all of the others placed in nomination and in many cases the Hoover delegates, generous in their security, helped the fan along to the discomfiture of the presiding officer, Senator Moses, whose overgrown wooden gavel was not big enough to crash through the continuing barrage of noise from the floor and restore order.

Rattles, Whistles and Toy Balloons.

All of the now familiar machinery of political convention demonstration was present. The convention floor was as well stocked with rattles and whistles as a nursery. Many colored toy balloons were bounced about, even in the more serious moments of the session, and the sleek gray-haired delegates who looked sedate enough to play roles of retired bankers and businessmen back home, joined in the fun and noise like school children on a picnic.

The best-ordained of all the demonstrators were, of course, the Hoover people, who not only had a small American flag apiece but also boasted a be-megaphoned male

Artillerymen Get Ready for Camp M. E. Church

Members of Local Batteries Inoculated Against Typhoid Before Going to Pine Camp—Many Young Men Joining Organization.

Not to members of Battery A, 155th Field Artillery, who are now at Pine Camp, Tenn., for the summer. The 155th Field Artillery were given an inoculation against typhoid and malaria by Dr. H. H. Van Norstrand, of the military hospital at the camp, Wednesday night. The inoculation is the administration of the antitoxin by subcutaneous injection.

The 155th were triple action and those who received them will be immune from typhoid for 3 years. They were given by Dr. Van Norstrand after a night arm of every applicant had been prepared to receive the dose.

The inoculation is but one of the benefits accorded the members of the 155th Field Artillery. They are given the treatment every year, which tends to keep them healthy during and from war camp season to the other. Many recruits have joined the local batteries to get in on the benefits for members of the 155th Field Artillery.

Each soldier is given three inoculations before leaving for camp. The next one will be administered on Tuesday night, June 19, at 8 o'clock.

Preparing for Camp.

Extensive preparations are now being made for the period of camping from July 1 to 15. The time will be spent at Pine Camp, near Watertown, in the northern part of the state. The time is one looked forward to by every member of the local batteries every year. It is one when plenty of fun crowds the lives of the soldiers, who benefit immensely by the experience.

Every young man who in the past has taken advantage of the camping opportunity offered by the 155th Field Artillery enjoyed the time very much. The batteries have a number of repeaters, that is men who sign up for one term of army life after the other. They claim it makes one fit physically and affords plenty of chance for educational opportunities.

Urged to Join National Guard.

Many prominent citizens of the United States have urged parents to encourage their sons to join the National Guard. The discipline they claim makes better Americans out of all affiliated with the organization.

Local youths who wish to join the 155th Field Artillery now in order to enjoy a vacation at Pine Camp, are advised to do so at once. All questions concerning enlistment will be answered at the armory. Young men who get into the outfit now will be given a chance to learn to ride a horse at the batteries' stables. This good exercise is one of the features of the camp life.

Why Circus Did Not Hold Parade

Heavy Rain Storm Delayed Arrival and Circus Did Not Pull Into City Until About 10 a. m.—Played This Afternoon—Shows Again Tonight.

The heavy rain storm that broke over Kingston and vicinity early Thursday evening also visited Liberty where the Walter L. Main circus was playing that day, and left the circus lot so wet and soggy that it delayed the loading of the circus aboard the train and it was unable to pull out of Liberty until about 4 o'clock this morning, arriving in Kingston over the O. & W. Railroad about 10 o'clock. Owing to the late arrival it was impossible to hold the street parade.

As soon as the circus pulled into Kingston it was unloaded as rapidly as possible and the work of erecting the huge tents started, and everything was ready for the afternoon performance, which was largely attended. The circus will play again this evening and the doors will open at 7 o'clock to permit an inspection of the zoo and to enjoy the musical concert by Prof. Griffin's military band.

The circus pitched its tents on the Fair Grounds. The circus this year is up to its usual standard.

Hull Will Retire.

Carthage, Tenn., June 15 (AP)—Cordell Hull, Tennessee's member of the Democratic national committee, announced today that he would retire when his term expires during the approaching convention at Houston, Texas. It is understood here that no political significance is attached to the action.

Ambulance Calls Here.

The city ambulance made two calls on Thursday, removing Charles Decker from Roosevelt street to the City of Kingston Hospital, and Mrs. Johnson Avery from 1712a Lows street to the Beneficence Hospital.

Lightning Hits Tower and Fire Follows, Leveling Church Building—Furnishings Saved—No Serious Damage Reported in Other Sections—Kingston Firemen Answer Call For Help.

The severe lightning that accompanied the heavy rainstorm early Thursday evening in this section struck the most damaging effect upon West Hurley. A lightning bolt struck the Methodist Episcopal church, which was a frame building, setting it afire. Following the crash, which was plainly heard in the village, flames burst forth and in a short time the building was leveled. The fire spread downward, starting in the church tower and breaking through the shingled roof. It then spread rapidly into the main body of the church, where all but one of the beautiful stained glass memorial windows were destroyed.

A metal ceiling over the auditorium of the church resisted the flames sufficiently long enough to enable members of the congregation and local residents to remove to safety the pulpit furnishings, chairs, the organ and pews. One of the beautiful memorial windows in the rear of the church was also saved.

The metal ceiling finally gave way and the windows collapsed. The remaining part of the structure then lasted but a short time and there remained but the foundation.

Kingston Firemen Unable to Help.

A call for assistance was sent to the Kingston fire department and Chief Murphy responded with the Wiltwyck Hose pump. The efforts made by the local firemen were of no avail as there was no water available.

The very heavy wind during the fire scattered sparks and burning embers for some distance and the rain undoubtedly saved other nearby structures from the ravages of fire.

The fire attracted a large number of the residents of the town and transients stopped their automobiles to view the conflagration. The pastor, the Rev. Fred Hultz, who resides at Shokan, was one of the most sorrowful spectators to view the destruction of the building wherein he preached the word of God.

An estimate of the building and the furnishings was placed at approximately $25,000. It was said that insurance in the amount of $7,000 was carried.

No Serious Trouble.

The local office of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation reported this morning there was no serious trouble. A few transformers were taken out by the lightning but they were repaired and service was not interrupted for any great period.

Woodstock in Darkness.

The village of Woodstock also felt the storm and there was considerable excitement in the otherwise peaceful community when the electric lights went out of commission as well as many of the telephones. There was no report made of any damage to any of the homes or buildings in the village.

It is believed that a bolt struck somewhere near the Little Art Shoppe in the village for the electric fuses in the Shoppe were blown out. The telephone was also out of order.

Other Sections Hit.

In many of the other sections throughout the county the storm was felt, but no great damage was reported today.

Heat Wave Broken by Storms

New York, June 15 (AP)—A one-day heat wave in the central Atlantic seaboard states had been broken today as a result of severe electrical storms that caused the death of one person and the injury of seven.

Robert W. Patterson, Jr., of Pittsburgh, an alumnus of Princeton, class of 1913, was killed by a lightning bolt as he stood under a tree at Princeton, N. J., where he was attending his class reunion. The class cancelled all further activities for the day and held a memorial service at which President John Orier Hibben spoke.

Seven persons were stunned by lightning bolts during the storm which swept Burlington, N. J., and two hotels were set on fire.

Six schoolboys who had taken a refuge under a tin awning in a housewife's closet, a window in her apartment, were stunned momentarily when lightning struck near them.

A trolley car was struck by lightning at Wilmington, Del., and much damage was done by the high winds and heavy rainfall.

Two houses on Staten Island, N. Y., were struck by lightning. In New York city the storm was accompanied by high winds and lightning but little damage was done. The storm caused an abrupt drop in temperature to 56 from a high of 80 in the afternoon, the hottest day this year for New York city.

Library to Close Earlier.

According to the usual custom, the Kingston City Library will close at 8 p. m. during the months of July and August. It now closes at 9 p. m.

New Broadway Gas Station Opens

The D. & S. Oil, Lubricant and Fuel Company, a corporation organized in Louisiana, and James H. Reed, to distribute Pure Oil products in Elbert county will have a formal opening of the new "Purco" service station at 303 Broadway today and Saturday. On the two opening days the purchaser of five or more gallons of Purco gasoline will receive a ticket which will entitle them to a free grease job any time within thirty days. In addition to the distribution of Purco straight run gas, the company will also distribute

At the Broadway service station, which is located on the site of the former New York City Police headquarters, Mr. Duffin and Mr. Hart are planning to build a new two-story apartment building on the 4th. The building will be served by St. Louis streetcars with a capacity of 150 passengers a minute. An automatic air conditioning system and a modern electric elevator will be provided. The new building is expected to be completed by next fall.

The ground for the Broadway apartment building, which will be served by Greenleaf streetcars on Greenleaf avenue. On Greenleaf avenue has been erected an office building 17 1/2 stories in size and a drug, hardware and modern automobile laundry for washers of cars, trucks and buses. This auto laundry will be one of the most modern along the Hudson river. Leslie Herrins of Oliver Park, who will operate the auto laundry, is supplying it with a modern high pressure steam washing machine operated by a 10-hp. motor pump, for which he has the authorization for several years. The laundry will be ready by July 1.

For distributing the new products manufactured by the new producers, International has purchased a new 250-ton motor oil pump truck with an 800-gallon tank. It is the intention of the corporation to distribute their products throughout the country as rapidly as the demand can be expanded. At present there are six stations operated in the country carrying branding oil products.

Purel gasoline and products are distinguished by the blue and white pumps.

The Purel Oil Company is one of the largest independent producers, refiners and distributors in America and during the past few years has grown and expanded rapidly in the New York city territory during the past two years the company had a immense growth and at the present time several of the large corporations are using Parli products exclusively. Among them are the New York Telephone Company, National Dairy Products Company and Armco.

Parli was brought to Cluster country indirectly through the work of the late Herbert Clark by whose efforts the L. & S. Oil and Fuel Company became the distributor. Through a large manufacturer of oils and greases in Indianapolis, Mr. Clark secured the Parli Company was made of the general distributor of the oil.

At present the corporation has a storage capacity of 100 gallons of gasoline at their plant which is located along the spur of the railroad on the former Tule and Tupper coal and lumber lands. Gasoline is unloaded directly from the tank cars by gravity to underground tanks from which it is served to the customer from electrically driven pumps. The wholesale distribution of gasoline, oils and greases is from the Greenwich avenue portion of the plant. Roadside service is also from the Greenwich avenue entrance although the drive-in station for service of the company is located on Broadway.

The SANDMAN STORY

BARNYARD CREATURES

"CACKLE, cackle, cackle," said Miss Hen.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do," said Mr. Rooster.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do," said Red Top, the rooster.

"Cackle, cackle," said Mrs. Gray Hen.

"Cluck, cluck," said Mrs. White Hen.

"Cackle, cackle," said Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen.

"Quack, quack," said Mr. Duck.

"Quack, quack," said Sir David Duck.

"Quack, quack, quack," said the little ducklings.

"Quack, quack," said their good mother.

"Quack, quack," said Mrs. Indian Runner Duck.

"Gobble, gobble," said Mr. Turkey.

"Neigh, neigh," said the horse.

"Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Bow, wow, wow," said the dog.

"Baa, baa, baa," said Mrs. White Sheep.

"Bow, wow, wow," said the dog.

"Baa, baa," said Billy Goat in a different tone of voice from that of Mrs. sheep.

"Chirp, chirp," said little Mr. Robin as he sat on the branch of a tree.

"Squirm, squirm," said the little worm, "this is no place for me."

And to prove that the worm was right Mr. Rooster picked it up from the ground and handed it most politely to Mrs. White Hen who swallowed it and cackled her thanks.

The song sparrow sang his little song and finally Porky Pig could stand it no longer.

"What are you all doing?" he asked.

"Just saying a friendly word to each other," they said.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

OUTWITTING MIDDLE AGE

"OUTWITTING Middle Age"—reads the title of a book recently written by Dr. Carl Ramus. The Century company in reviewing the book says: "Old age is a preventable disease. Exuberance, vitality and appearance of youth may be re-created and preserved."

Has the fountain of perpetual youth at last been discovered? Does the last word of science inform us that old age is a disease? If it is certainly should be preventable. The same component parts of the human body exist in all other forms of nature and they have kept on dying for centuries. Have we discovered that the old philosophers were right? That matter is eternal? Even if it were true—who wants to live forever?

Time does not measure the value of life. Some persons live more in thirty years than others do in seventy. Existence is not life. The former is physical, the latter mental and spiritual. The real quality of a person's life is not necessarily measured by his achievements. Not what we accomplished but what we tried earnestly and sacrificially to realize—are the records which the angels keep.

Life is a strange thing. It cannot be defined, analyzed or even destroyed. Try and write a definition of life and see how difficult a task it is. No one has successfully defined it. Yet it is the most real thing with which we have to deal. The thing for which we will be remembered is the kind of a life we lived, in terms of the highest moral values, and not the material possessions we may have acquired. Life is saved by being lost in service.

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not in figures on the dial. We should count time by heart throbs.

Who thinks most, feels the noblest acts the best.

It matters not how long we live but how we live.

(S. 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Our Great Men
Some of our great men have been immortalized in biography.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Turns Born at Mid-Ocean."—Boston Post headline. Why not name them Fore and Aft?

"Who has got the food?" asked Brother Bacon.

"No one has any food, now," said Mr. Duck. "The time for breakfast has not as yet arrived."

"How gorgeously and grandly and magnificently and beautifully you talk, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"You flatter me, quack, quack," said Mr. Duck.

"Not at all, it is the truth," said Mrs. Duck.

"But what does all this friendly word business mean?" asked Sammy Sausage.

"Here I was having a nice dream of a castle built of food and I awoke to hear every one talking and chattering and I thought to myself:

"Ha, ha, grunt, grunt, the food has come."

"No food has come as yet," said Red Top. "We are all hungry and ready for a good breakfast it is true. But it will not be long now."

"Why are you all talking in such a friendly fashion when there isn't even any food to talk about?" asked Finky Pig.

"Of course, Red Top," said Porky Pig. "You have always had the habit of getting up at crack of dawn, as the saying is."

"You take after your father and his father before him and his father before him—and I don't know how far."

"But they have all been early risers. Much too early risers to suit lots of folks."

"Well, I won't change the custom of the family, for it would be making out the family to be of little importance," said Red Top.

"Still I don't understand why you are all strutting about and talking," said Sammy Sausage.

"You woke up the whole pig pen," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"You did, it's true," said Percival Pork.

"Had we been awakened for food we would not have complained, but to be awakened by a lot of idle chatter, gracious, mercy, grunt, grunt, it is too much," said Grandfather Porky.

"The ways of the barnyard creatures are funny," said Sammy Sausage.

"Of course they are to you," said Mr. Rooster. "All you creatures think of is food. You think that any other conversations or talks are utterly foolish."

"To be sure we do," said the pigs. "We're sensible, greedy pigs, and the love and affection in our pig hearts is all turned in the direction of food—and direction where there is food!"

But at that moment appeared the animals' breakfast and the whole barnyard parook of the meal!

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

ORIGIN OF THE "PRINT"

THE collecting of prints is becoming one of the most popular of hobbies. Certainly enjoyment of them is no longer limited to the artistically sophisticated, for today in quite modest homes, we see the product of the etcher, the woodcutter and the engraver. And of all the known arts, none has woven about its history a more unique tale than the origin of making prints, or taking impressions from engraved plates.

For its beginning, we must go back to the workshop of one Tomaso Finiguerra, a goldsmith of Florence, who decorated gold and silver plates by filling their engraved lines with black enamel or "niello." Before treating his wares with this substance, which hardened and became permanent after it was applied, he would try out the effect with a temporary medium. This was accomplished by rubbing soot and oil into the crevices that were to hold the ink.

One day, according to the story, one of his plates was laid face downward upon a sheet of paper, and when the plate was removed the first crude "print" appeared which is supposed to have furnished the inspiration for the subsequent improved efforts in this direction.

The earliest recorded engravings are a series of copper plate engravings dating about the middle of the Fifteenth century, their subject being the "Passion." The latter half of the Fifteenth century saw the birth of two of the world's greatest engravers, Dürer, being born in 1471, and Michael, Angelo, in 1474.

General Synod Plans Future

Success in Raising Endowment and Giving a Quarter Million Dollars Goal Endeavor to Build Future Worth of Past History.

The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, which met at the Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, New York City, was one of the most important in the history of this denomination. Three hundred years ago, on April 1, 1628, the first minister of the Reformed Church, the Rev. John Dickinson, landed on Manhattan and thus became the head of the Reformed Church in America. This year at this meeting of General Synod, the Rev. Malcolm J. MacLeod, D. D., pastor of the Church of St. Nicholas, the church where Synod met, was elected president of Synod, thus making the minister of the church that has continued since that early landing on Manhattan the leader of the denomination.

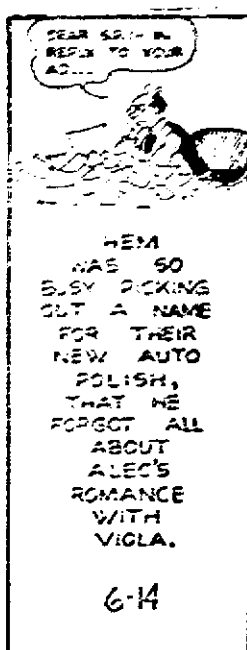

The Rev. Dr. J. Addison Jones, the retiring president of General Synod in his synodical sermon on Thursday evening called upon the church to carry on in the view of the past and stressed as the objectives for the new year evangelism, world peace and endowment of educational institutions as the urgent need in the present day. The great thing about this Synod was the historical celebration. All of Saturday, part of Sunday, and all of Monday was given to this. The outgoing Saturday with a trip up the Hudson River to Poughkeepsie for those who wanted to go that far, or an auto trip from Bear Mountain through the historic points in Westchester county for those who preferred it, was one of the bright spots of the Synod.

The spectacular meeting on Sunday afternoon, when the clergy in ecclesiastical vestments moved in solemn procession down Forty-eighth street to Fifth Avenue and into the church, will not be soon forgotten by those who saw it. The addresses by the foreign delegates from Holland and other countries were thrilling.

On Monday the whole day was given to historical addresses and the recognition of fraternal delegates from most of the older denominations, and from nearly every country of the world. The celebration closed with a banquet at the Hotel Pennsylvania, and the principal speakers were Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, Washington, D. C., and Dr. J. H. Van Rijen, Netherlands Minister at Washington. This historical celebration which began last April in various parts of the church and culminated in this meeting of General Synod has had its effect upon the whole eastern-central section of our country, as well as the northwest. Numerous meetings have been held by historical societies, and other societies in various parts of the country, and numerous articles and pictures have appeared in the daily papers and magazines.

The principal items in the business of Synod were: The completion of the million dollar pension fund for pensions for disabled ministers and their widows. On Sunday evening, June 10, the Rev. Joseph R. Durren, D. D., president of the Pension Fund, turned over the sum to the President of General Synod, $1,038,098.28 in cash, and $223,622.00 in pledges, as the fund for ministerial pensions. This is the amount up to date, but it will undoubtedly be increased considerably. Those in charge of the cam-

only a stepping-stone to the future. The large increase of church members received during the past year due to the campaign of visitation evangelism has led the church to set the goal of members to be received next year at 20,000. All the agencies of the church are on their toes to make a showing next year as will be commensurate to the inspiration of this elaborate tercentennial celebration. Synod closed at noon Wednesday to meet next year in Holland, Michigan, and after final word by Dr. MacLeod the General Synod of 1928 began history.

The committee on public morals presented some stirring resolutions calling for the sustaining of our national constitution and also demanding that our political parties in conventions assembled pledge full faith and allegiance to our national constitution.

Education was given a prominent place in the Synod's program. Northwestern Classical Academy at Orange City, Iowa, an institution under the control of General Synod, was given permission to enlarge its scope of training to that of a junior college. Now that the pension fund is completed, Synod called upon the churches of the denomination to raise $100,000.00, one thousand dollars for each year of the existence of the Board of Education, which is one hundred years old this year, this money to be used for the endowment of our western colleges which is now much lower than it should be.

The report of the Committee on the State of Religion given by Dr. J. A. Jones, the retiring president, was most encouraging. It showed that more than 15,000 new members had been received and a net gain of nearly 5,000 members made, which is a gain of over three per cent. Dr. Jones's report was a most elaborate one and contained a printed sheet of statistics which showed the growth of the denomination during the past 300 years.

This year the contributions to all objects amounted to $39.15 per member, or $2 more than last year. The number of churches in the denomination has increased 323 per cent since 1628, and the ministry 693 per cent. The numbers received on confession increased 37 per cent over last year and those by received letter showed an increase of 25 per cent. Money contributed for denominational objects increased five per cent, for other benevolent objects eight per cent and for congregational expenses 12 per cent. The church now has a total membership of 155,080, and in territory stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

After the historic celebration extending from Saturday to Monday night, Synod got down to work early on Tuesday morning. The report of the Committee of Professorate gladdened the hearts of Synod with the announcement that within the last week the New Brunswick Theological Seminary has received $140,000 from the Pell Estate, $3,000 from the Steinfuhrer Estate and $14,000 from the Jennings Estate. The Western Theological Seminary has also received several donations. Dr. John E. Kuizenga was elected professor of theology in the Western Theological Seminary in place of the Rev. E. J. Blekkink, who has been declared Professor Emeritus.

The report of the Board of Domestic Missions shows that $451,000 has been received during the past year, with which 205 churches were aided and 219 pastors. Five new missions were started, seven churches organized and five assumed self-support. The great need of the Board is for the building fund. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been appropriated for this purpose and the money is not in hand to make the payments. The Board of Domestic Missions was ordered to secure the services of a competent architect who should be at the service of churches planning a building project.

The affairs of the Board of Foreign Missions were however not so fortunate, for they received $3,392 less than last year. This board now has a deficit of $62,650. Part of this is no doubt caused by the efforts made by the churches to reach their goal in the pension fund, and now that that is accomplished every effort will be made next year to meet this deficit and provide sufficient funds to the board for its advance work. Never was there a greater opportunity on the Mission Field than at the present time. A striking scene followed the reading of the report on Foreign Missions when three persons represent Japan, India and China, and brought greetings of the Mission Churches. Of these each was a native of the countries represented. The man from India, the Rev. T. Navasimban, is a converted Brahman who met Dr. Chamberlain 29 years ago in a rice field in India. Later he became converted and is now a minister in India. Dr. Chamberlain introduced him to Synod, and the meeting of these two on the platform was thrilling indeed.

The evening of Tuesday was given to a joint meeting of the Boards of Foreign and Domestic Missions at which Dr. William I. Chamberlain and Dr. James S. Kittell spoke.

Much routine business was transacted on Tuesday and Wednesday and the work of Synod, while pushed to its utmost these days was nevertheless done in a thorough manner. On the whole it was a Synod of inspiration, of jubilation over the glorious three hundred years of the past, but all this with the thought in mind that the past is only a stepping-stone to the future. The large increase of church members received during the past year due to the campaign of visitation evangelism has led the church to set the goal of members to be received next year at 20,000. All the agencies of the church are on their toes to make a showing next year as will be commensurate to the inspiration of this elaborate tercentennial celebration. Synod closed at noon Wednesday to meet next year in Holland, Michigan, and after final word by Dr. MacLeod the General Synod of 1928 began history.

YOUNG WOMAN GIVES SELF FOR $6,000, BUT IS HAPPY

Enjoys Generosity of Peasamier, But Is Given Right to Change Mind for Another.

Milwaukee.—A strange path to happiness has led nineteen-year-old Bernice Albert and her parents from a barren small farm in Barron county, Wis., to a comfortable bungalow in this city, with all their wants provided for and many of their dreams fulfilled by a crippled veteran of the Spanish-American war.

William W. Goyne, forty-eight years old, postmaster at the National Soldiers' Home in Milwaukee, is their benefactor.

Months ago the struggle to eke out a living from the poor soil on the little backwoods farm, with the seventy-four-year old father crippled from rheumatism, had driven the Albert family to despair.

Finally in desperation—not over her own hard lot, but because of the falling health and financial worries of her parents—Bernice was led to make a strange offer through a Milwaukee newspaper. She would marry any good man, she wrote, who would give her $6,000 so that she could provide for her mother and father in their old age.

Offers have crammed the rural mail box at the Albert farm since that time. The other day Bernice had 700 letters—from all corners of the United States and Canada.

But Goyne's proposal was something different. He sent $25 in his first letter. Then he visited Bernice. He did not ask her to marry him. He felt that he wouldn't be the sort of man a girl of nineteen would want to marry. So he proposed that he take the family to Milwaukee, set them up in a home for six months, and then—well, many things may happen in that time. The family hesitated—and then accepted his offer.

"She'll want to marry some young fellow, and she's perfectly free to do so," Goyne says. "I'm getting all the reward I want out of the happiness I'm providing."

"He isn't just the sort of a man I'd dreamed of marrying, but I'm sure I couldn't marry a better one," says Bernice, now happy because her parents are happy.

Famous Sons Return to Maryland Village

Lonaconing, Md.—Native sons and daughters who left this little mining village deep in the hills of western Maryland to seek fortunes in the cities all came home recently to a municipal celebration sponsored by the Lonaconing Civic club.

Almost 500 of them with their wives, husbands and children returned for the week.

Among those that the stay-at-homes welcomed were John Gardner Murray, head of the Episcopal church in America; Dr. John A. Kolmer, Washington physician, often consulted in White House cases; George Conion, sculptor commissioned by France to make a statue of Lindbergh, and Judge D. Lindley Sloan, chief judge of Allegheny county.

Conion in his boyhood worked in the mines, and not so many years ago nearly lost his job when he was found wasting his time modeling in the clay of the pits.

Lonaconing boasts that it is the only town in the United States bearing its name. Just "Lonaconing, U. S. A.," say the city fathers, is sufficient address.

France Razes Fort Famous During War

Maubeuge, France.—An act of parliament recently declared Maubeuge militarily "an open town" and wreckers are already at work dismantling the fortress and razing the chain of forts surrounding it.

Forty thousand French troops were made prisoners here in 1914, when fortifications constructed by Vauban under Louis XIV failed to withstand the hammering of the great siege guns built in Essen under William II.

"The dismantling of Maubeuge spells the doom of fortifications as defenses against modern artillery," Marshal Foch is quoted as having told an interviewer.

"At least those constructed by Vauban," the marshal added.

If this principle were officially adopted by the French general staff and government it would make "open towns" of Dunkirk, Brest, Rochefort, La Rochelle and all the Atlantic seaboard obsolete fortresses.

Hawaiian Judge Tempers Justice With Philosophy

Honolulu.—Hawaii's leper settlement at Kalaupapa has a magistrate who is a patient possessed of considerable local fame as a philosopher. He is Caesar S. Nascimento and in addition to dispensing justice he also presides over the post office.

One of his recent rulings came to light when a case was appealed. It was a disorderly conduct case wherein a husband received only a light fine.

"Some women make a big thing out of a small thing," wrote the magistrate. "Women should think twice before making complaints. If police were not so busy in making arrests on complaints by women, life in Kalaupapa would be much more pleasant. Also the magistrate would not have to hear so many trivial disputes."

Glad He Shot Himself

New York.—Ellis Body, Hungarian artist, is glad he shot himself. It happened a year ago in the Paris apartment of Vera Leighner of Cleveland. He recovered and now Vera, his bride, is here with him.

The IRON with the BUILT-IN WATCHMAN watches itself

Whether you iron fast or slow, whether you use it constantly or leave it frequently, even if you forget it—the Westinghouse Automatic Iron is always at the proper heat for good ironing.

The "Built-In Watchman" — the famous Spencer thermostat — in the base of the Westinghouse Iron assures correct ironing temperature automatically.

Constantly on the job this "Built-In Watchman" watches the iron while you watch the ironing. He never lets the heat rise above or fall below the point where ironing is easiest and best. Click! he turns the current off. Click! he turns it on again—off and on automatically — as long as the iron is attached.

KANSAS HIT BY VIOLENT DEATHS

Fires, Automobiles and Murders Take Toll of Lives at El Dorado.

El Dorado, Kan.—When will the end come?

That is what residents of this collinary peaceful community are asking each other as the toll of sudden and violent deaths mounts almost daily.
Since January 1, 31 persons in the El Dorado community have met sudden death.

Fourteen of those who have perished were burned to death in their homes, or fell into scalding water.
Motor car accidents have claimed five others and mishaps of other kinds have claimed the remainder.

Of the 14 who have succumbed as the result of fire, 12 perished in burning homes.

A fire that took the lives of five persons occurred early this year at White station, eight miles southwest of here.
This blaze was the forerunner of the string of tragedies. In this fire, Harry Miller and his three children, Opal, Raymond and Bernice, were burned beyond recognition. Mrs. Minnie Miller, the mother, was burned so badly that she died a few weeks later. Two other children also were burned, but recovered.

Asleep in Their Home.

At the time this fire occurred, the Millers were asleep in their home.
Raymond, aged eight years, had arisen to start the kitchen fire. Whether he used kerosene was never learned. But shortly after he touched a match to the fuel the house was in flames, Raymond was trapped on the second floor of the home with the others and perished. He ran to warn them that the place was in flames.

The second holocaust occurred 20 miles northwest of El Dorado the night of April 20, when Mr. and Mrs.
William Oberst, well-known German farmers of North Butler county, and their five younger children, Herbert, Edith, Hugh, Ralph and Dorothy, perished. Owen, seventeen, the only survivor of the family, is being held at the county jail pending trial on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Owen has confessed that he first shot and killed the other members of the family with a .22 caliber rifle and then set fire to the home after pouring oil on the kitchen floor.

Owen committed the murders, be-told officers, because he was "mad at his father." The latter, a well-to-do farmer, had refused Owen permission to use the family motor car when the youth had dates. Owen never drove the car except in the daytime, and then when his father was with him.

For two weeks after the murders,
Owen defied county officers to fasten the crime on him. Finally, he broke down and confessed. Asked why he did it, he said he wanted to clean up the whole affair. Owen's confession did not go into the killings in detail.

He merely said he shot one member of the family and two others. He refused to say what the other members of the family were doing overhead when he was killing them, and he was killing them one at a time.
A search of the files revealed that only started bodies of six victims in that part of the house where the kitchen was located. The body of the seventh person, believed to be that of the mother, was found in the adjacent room after the house.

Statues to Death.

Robert Mehl, aged eight months, was the youngest person of the 14 who have lost their lives from burns so far this year. The youngster, while playing on the floor at his home, fell into some scalding water. Gertrude Wilson, aged five years, was burned to death late one morning while asleep in the home of her parents at Salt fords, east of here. Two other children narrowly escaped. The mother was in the garden working.

Mrs. Esther Blanche Moore, Lewis
E. Williams and Fred Wright dropped dead from heart disease. William F.
Lowrey was instantly killed when he was struck on the head by a large bridge timber. Dave Corfman, farm-boy, was fatally injured when a falling tree struck him during a high windstorm. Charles Cannon, farmer, died as the result of a rifle wound.

John Belt and Ray Allen were asphyxiated while at work in an oil tank. Mrs. Lucy J. Sotter was fatally injured in a fall at her home. J. K.
Scott met death when he leaped from a wagon on which he was riding and

BEARSVILLE.

Bearsville, June 14.—At a recent meeting of Agapae Rebekah Lodge it was decided to suspend meetings during the months of July and August. Wednesday night, June 20, will therefore be the last meeting night before closing for the summer and all members are urged to be present. At the close of the regular session a social hour will be spent.

The Missionary Society of the Woodstock M. E. Church will hold the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. C. R. Shanks, Tuesday afternoon, June 19, at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time.

Mrs. Carrie Benson is spending two weeks at her summer bungalow.
Mr. and Mrs. Moore have arrived at their summer home for the season.

School closes this week. Miss Burnham, the teacher, will take the children to Forest Park, Kingston, Friday, for a picnic.

J. J. Rose and Walter Shults are building a garage for Mrs. M. Rosenwald.

attend the State C. E. Convention in Albany, beginning June 23.

Mrs. M. S. Wyckoff is spending some time with her sister, Mrs.
Abram Elmendorf.

The residence of Charles Snyder was struck by lightning Saturday afternoon. Fortunately Mr. Snyder and daughter were not at home.

Mr. Badeau, a graduate of New Brunswick Seminary, will have charge of the services Sunday morning.

Fire Underwriters Make Recommendations

That Additional Hydrants and Water Mains Be Installed—That Paid Fire Department Be Increased in Numbers and New Company Formed—That Building Code Be Revised.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters have filed with the city officials a copy of a survey made of Kingston by their engineers during November and December of last year. The report is a lengthy one and contains many recommendations such as increasing the number of paid firemen, installing new fire hydrants, laying new water mains, forming another fire company of paid firemen, and revising the building code. The survey was made by Engineers J. H. Howland, George J. Robinson and S. Q. Stonessifer.

The report states that complete fire records for the last five years were not available. The gross fire loss for the three years ending with 1926, as given in fire department records, amounted to $182,297, varying from $50,150 in 1925 to $63,348 in 1926. The annual number of fires averaged 187, varying from 129 in 1925 to 286 in 1926, with an average fire loss per fire of $325, a low figure. The average annual number of fires per 1,000 population, based on an average population of 28,500, was 6.6, a very high number, and the average loss per capita was $2.14, a low figure.

Fire Fighting Facilities. Under the head of fire fighting facilities the report outlines the water facilities of the city. It states that there were on December 1, 1927, 523 hydrants in service. Hydrants are not regularly inspected but needed repairs are made as reported and inspections are made of those operated during cold weather. When the survey was made of the hydrants operated leaky stuffing boxes were numerous; many had defective valves or poor drainage, and a few were still in operation. The general condition showed the need of a regular and systematic inspection.

Under the head of fire department the survey outlines the organization of the various fire companies. It states that the fire department, part paid and part volunteer, is under good supervision and command by an experienced and capable chief who also devotes part of his time to the duties of building inspection. The fire department is handicapped by a lack of necessary equipment. Discipline in the department as a whole is poor owing to the presence of so many volunteer members over whom the chief has little control.

Fire methods are modern and effective for the ordinary fires although the department would be hampered in handling a large fire by the lack of trained men. Building inspections are producing good results.

In regard to the fire alarm system the report states that box distribution in the principal mercantile district is fair, but distribution elsewhere is generally poor, many important sections being without fire alarm boxes. It was estimated that about 40 additional boxes were needed.

Building Hazards. Under the heading of structural conditions and hazards the report outlines that the building code of 1920 places the supervision of building operation with the building inspector, under control of the board of fire commissioners. The municipal building code adopted in 1920, with a few important amendments since then, contains provisions which practically follow the National Board Building Code for small cities, but features affecting private fire protection are omitted and improved construction is inadequately treated. Little consideration is given to fireproof construction and mull construction is not mentioned.

Buildings within the fire limits having walls of terra cotta or concrete block are limited to 3 stories or 40 feet in height; all buildings over 1 stories in height must be of fireproof construction, but not to exceed 10 stories or 125 feet in height.

Frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, must not exceed 2 stories or 30 feet in height, except dwellings which may be 3 stories or 40 feet in height. Within the fire limits, frame construction is prohibited, except temporary sheds, fences not over 10 feet high and small outbuildings not exceeding 150 square feet in area. A frame building, to be used exclusively as a dwelling house and not occupied by more than 2 families and not exceeding 2,500 square feet in floor space, may be constructed by special consent of the fire board. Buildings over one story in height and used for public garages must be of fireproof construction.

The fire limits are of insufficient size to protect the principal mercantile district, located in the northwestern part of the city and the Roundout mercantile district, located in the southeastern part of the city. The municipal building ordinances as they apply to new construction are well enforced, considering the numerous other duties of the fire chief. The retroactive features pertaining to the protection of vertical openings are not enforced.

Recommendations Made. The recommendations deemed of the most importance are given below. Their early adoption is urged. That high service regulating valves be placed in service at Broadway and Stuyvesant street and on recommended Wilbur avenue cross connection, for supplementing the supply to the low service when pressures are reduced under heavy draft.

That the distribution system be strengthened by the early installing of mains. The mains recommended are along Stuyvesant, Chambers and Murray streets, Delaware avenue, Ponchockie, East Union and Gill streets, West Pierpont, Ravine, Spruce and Hudson streets, Main street, Crown and Green streets, Wilbur avenue.

That fire hydrants with 4-inch barrel and branch connection to main be replaced with those having 6-inch gated branch and at least 6-inch barrel, equipped with one engine and two 2½ inch hose outlets. That at least two paid men be added to each platoon of the paid companies immediately and that eventually the membership be increased so that there will be available 22 men during the day and 30 men during the night.

That another engine company be established in headquarters equipped with a motor pumper of at least 750 gallons capacity and carrying a chemical or water tank.

That a drill tower and necessary equipment be provided for establishing a drill school where all members may be regularly drilled in modern hose and ladder evolutions, including the use of pomper ladders, life saving, ventilation and salvage work; these drills to be under the direction of a competent officer, preferably a graduate of a modern drill school.

That a gong on an alarm circuit and a register and tapper on a box circuit, with provisions for transferring the register from the box to the alarm circuit, be installed in each fire station and the use of visual indicators be discontinued.

That reliability of the service be increased by extending underground circuits where ducts are available, using rubber insulation of copper wire to lead electric and providing for grounded lightning arresters and heavy current fuses at the junction of overhead and underground construction.

That additional fire alarm boxes be installed so that a box shall be visible and within 500 feet of each building in the principal mercantile district and elsewhere within 500 feet of important groups of buildings.

That the building code be revised to conform to modern requirements for construction and fire prevention as given in the National Board Code, particularly as to improved construction and private fire protection.

That a complete system of regulations governing the sale, manufacture, storage and transportation of explosive and inflammable substances be adopted by ordinance, the chief of the fire department to be held solely responsible for its enforcement, and that members of the fire department make frequent and effective inspection of all buildings and premises in their respective districts, filing complete records of each inspection, and that printed application and permit forms be used.

That owners of existing defectively constructed buildings, which are so located as to form conflagration areas, be required to suitably protect floor, party wall and exposed window openings.

That automatic sprinkler equipment with outside siphon hose connections and controlling valves near main in street, be required in all buildings, which by reason of their size, construction or occupancy, singly or combined might act as conflagration breeders.

General Summary. The survey concluded with a general summary of the city in general. It states that population is about 29,000 with a number of manufacturing plants. Some steep grades between different sections of the city. Street widths fair to good; large proportion paved and in fairly good condition. High winds are moderately frequent; winter temperature severe. Loss per fire and loss per capita low; number of fires very high.

Water supply.—Municipal works; capable and experienced organization. Records poor. Supply mains generally adequate with new equalizing reservoir in service. Consumption excessive; few meters. Pressures normally good but seriously reduced under heavy draft. Distribution in two services. Main arteries fairly extensive; secondary feeders lacking. Minor distributors very largely undersized; giddion generally good; dead ends numerous. Gate valve spacing wide. Hydrant spacing good in principal mercantile district; wide elsewhere; many hydrants of unsatisfactory type and size.

Fire department.—Part paid and part volunteer; paid men on 2-platoon basis. Under good supervision and commanded by experienced and capable officers. Appointments and promotions made for indefinite terms with removal only for cause; requirements fairly satisfactory. Companies sufficient in number but number of paid men inadequate. Chemical and ladder service good; engine capacity somewhat inadequate. Special and heavy stream appliances well provided; insufficient minor equipment. No 3-inch hose; 2½-inch hose adequate and well cared for. Response to alarms fair. Drills and training hampered by lack of drill tower. Discipline among paid men good; with volunteers poor. Building inspections effective. Records fair.

Fire Alarm System.—Automatic system, well maintained. Headquarters in fireproof building. Apparatus complete except for transmitter. No separate alarm circuit to fire stations. Alarm instruments in fire stations deficient; unreliable visual indicators used. Many boxes of inferior type; distribution generally poor. Part of circuits underground. Speed of alarms slow. Telephone facilities fair, alarms improperly handled. Tests and inspections fairly good. Records incomplete.

Fire Department Auxiliaries.—No fire marshal; police assist fire chief to investigate suspicious fires. Police cooperation at fire and public service corporations render prompt and telephone service to the company much used for service in alarms. Substation outside of fire limits.

Summary.—Water supply adequate for fire. Quantity available for fire service in high value districts good to poor. Small mains and distributors seriously limit supply in many sections. Fire department main well equipped but has inadequate paid men. Fire alarm system of proper type but inadequate. House connections well located.

Structural Hazards. Building laws mainly good, but feature of testing private fire protection and improved construction omitted. Enforcement good. Fire limits of insufficient size to protect mercantile districts. Wooden shingled roofs prohibited only within fire limits. Structural conditions weak.

Explosives and Inflammables.—Laws incomplete; fairly good enforcement by fire department. Local conditions generally good, but a few hazardous conditions exist. Electrical and National Electrical Code adopted. Good supervision; rearrangement of old work made. No alarm from electricians. Education needed. Large number of private principles and methods of fire protection. Fairly good supervision of a considerable part of the district becoming involved in fire. Only severe structural or other fire probably to manifest itself in mercantile districts. Structural conditions present a most

Angora Has Elevator, but No Elevator Boy

Angora, Turkey.—The first elevator has been installed in one of the 6,000 shops of Turkey's sea capital. This machine, which is the first of its kind in the country, was installed in the first floor of the new building, the first of the new water system, the first of the new electric system, the first of the new telephone system, and the first of the new public works. The machine is a simple one, but it is a great help to the people of Angora, who are used to carrying their goods up and down the stairs.

When we get down to a question of real education, there are only two things we can accomplish, says Secretary Davis in current history. One is to teach people to think about the problems they will meet and have to face in life. The other is to train them how to do the things they will have to do in life, the useful arts that will make them of some value to society. The once-accepted theory that the product of our general educational system was educated and the individual who had learned how to work in his youth was uneducated is now being exploded.

Elementary Rule

The rule of thumb has reference to the method of procedure derived entirely from practice or experience without any basis in scientific knowledge.

The difference in a maiden and a widow is, the maiden has to run after a man to catch him while the widow catches by standing still.

"Have you been to any other doctor before you came to see me?" asked the grouchy doctor.

"No sir," replied the weak patient. "I went to see a druggist."

"You went to a druggist?" exclaimed the doctor. "That shows how much sense you people have."

"And what idiotic advice did the druggist give you?"

"He told me to come and see you," replied the patient.

"His speech betrayeth thee. Everybody's does."

"The aviator's wedding seems to have been quite a come-down."

"Yes, he married a girl who is higher than he is."

Smith—Would you advise me to marry a beautiful girl or a sensible girl?

Brown—I'm afraid you'll never be able to marry either, old man.

Smith—Why not?

Brown—Well, a beautiful girl could do better, and a sensible girl would know better.

Dear Office Cat—My wife wants me to print her poetry and she keeps me awake nights reading the drivel. What would you recommend for relief?

Answer—Rock her to sleep. Use a big rock.

One of the best English jokes we have heard dealt with a hobo leaning on a fence surrounding the grounds of an exclusive country club.

An officious personage bustled up, shouting, "Ere, ere this won't do. You'll have to move on."

"And who are you?" asked the ragged knight of the highroad.

"The secretary of the club," answered the other.

"Well, that's no way to get members," remarked the hobo as he leisurely took the road again.

"Now, do tell me all the scandal that's happened while I've been away."

"There hasn't been any dear, while you've been away."

Napoleon said there was no such word as can't, but then he never tried to strike a match on a cake of soap.

The world is progressing. In former times the tramp was content to count the ties if unable to bum a ride on the train. Now he steals a car and travels in style.

"Good morning, motor"

"MORNING, RED. Say, Red, help me to put up a job on the Boss, will you? He isn't going to use me today—just drove down for some gas. Tell him you'd like to give me the once-over. Offer to drive him up to the house and then bring me back. The point is, the Madam bought some cheap oil last week and it's nearly killing me. If I don't get rid of it and dose up on some of your good old medium, I'm going to be sick. Already my crank shaft is rheumatic and my bearings are squealing. If the boss starts to argue, draw a little of the oil from my crank case and show it to him. Ask him how I'm taking the hills. That'll make him blush. You are the only one who understands my innards and how much I need the best gas and oil. Go to it, Red."

YOUR SPEEDOMETER DOESN'T TELL YOU THE HALF OF IT

MILEAGE? Yes, but that's the least important of several good reasons for stopping at the Socony pump and nowhere else. Motors stay young on a regular diet of Socony Motor Gasoline and Socony Motor Oil. Some members of our own big automotive fleet have run 90,000 and 100,000 miles with only minor repairs. Any car owner who standardizes on Socony Motor Gasoline and Oil can do as well and some do.

Try Socony Special

If you drive one of the new high compression motors, or an older model with carbon in the cylinders, try Socony Special Gasoline. It eliminates knocking, improves pick-up and gives you an extra lift of power on the steep hills. It works as well in spring and summer as in winter. Like Socony Gasoline and Socony Motor Oil, Socony Special is tested thirteen times before it reaches your car.

Ten-minute

vice from your battery . . . .

BATTERIES are like teeth—you will get longer and better service out of them if they are inspected regularly by an expert.

Give your battery only ten minutes a month at an Exide Service Station. That's all it needs. Just long enough to let the Exide Service man test the voltage, and see if you need distilled water, or grease on the terminals.

It is a trifling bit of work, but you have no idea what a difference it will make in the long run. Regular care by a battery expert will often add as much as 25 per cent to the life of a battery. And think what a saving that would mean to you!

Look for the Exide sign

You can always be sure of expert service at an Exide Station. No matter what make of battery you have, it will pay you to call regularly at the Exide sign.

Get into the habit of stopping there once a month. It takes so little time—just about long enough to smoke a cigarette—yet it will save real money in battery costs.

CATTLE INVADE BUFFALO RANCH

Pawnee Bill Stocks Up With Cows to Impress Prince of Wales.

Pawnee, Okla.—The great ranch of Pawnee Bill, long a sanctuary for buffalo, has been invaded by domestic cattle—just because the old partner of Buffalo Bill met the prince of Wales.

A herd of pedigreed Shorthorn flourishes on the broad acres, and Pawnee Bill confidently expects to exhibit the stock some day to the future king of England when that young man visits the ranch for a buffalo hunt.

Major Gordon W. Little—that's Pawnee Bill's real name—was invited by the prince four years ago to hunt with him at his ranch near High River, Alberta. During the prince's visit at High River he had occasion to witness an auction of his prize Shorthorns and Pawnee Bill was glad to go along.

Buys Prize Calf.

Major Little was sitting beside the prince when Princeton Enthusiast, a calf which had won the highest award at a Dominion livestock show, was put on the block.

He determined to buy the animal but the bidding was lively, for several Canadian cattle barons wanted it, too. The Oklahoma frontiersman was the high bidder, but he had to pay $775, the top price for the sale.

The prince had to cancel the hunting engagement to hurry back to the Atlantic coast, and he expressed regret to Major Little, who had traveled 2,000 miles to join in the royal hunt.

"That's perfectly all right," said the prince of the prairies to the prince of Wales, and he explained what a pleasure it was to have bought from the British heir the best calf in Canada. He invited the prince to Oklahoma on his next American visit to hunt buffalo on the Little ranch, which has one of the largest privately owned buffalo herds in the world. And he promised that he would have a herd of Shorthorns, too, for the prince to see.

Loyal to Buffaloes.

Princeton Enthusiast, now the size of some of the finest Shorthorns in the Southwest, is the pride of the Little ranch, occupying the exalted position once held by Challenge, king of the buffalo herd.

The buffaloes retain their sovereignty, however. "Pawnee Bill" quit the show business to devote his life to saving them from extinction and he will not forsake them in preference to domestic cattle. In fact, he says he may dispose of the Shorthorns after the prince of Wales sees them, so the buffaloes can have a larger range.

New Chicken Disease Appears in Maryland

Beltsville, Md.—Maryland producers of turkeys and chickens are concerned over the appearance of a new nematode that causes a loss of appetite in their stock, followed by a weakened and emaciated condition that results in death.

At the federal agricultural experiment station here the nematode is described as very slender and thread-like. It works into the mucosa of the esophagus, including the crop. In the early stages a blocking and enlargement of the lymph follicles is apparent and the walls of the parasitized parts become greatly thickened and nonelastic. In later stages a sloughing of the mucosa and the formation of a fibrous pseudomembrane occur, lowering the efficiency of the digestive tract.

The nematode has made its appearance during the last two autumns in turkeys and more recently in chickens.

Berlin Copies America; Builds Hotel Tunnel

Berlin.—Berlin is the first German city to take a leaf out of America's book and construct a tunnel from a railway station to a nearby hotel.

From the Anhalter station, where the trains from the South, chiefly from Munich, Nuremberg and Dresden, arrive, a subterranean passage has been built to the Excelsior hotel, patronized chiefly by business men. The hotel had to assume the entire cost of construction and experienced considerable difficulty besides to obtain a building permit from the city.

The work of construction took eight months. The tunnel is 325 feet long, 10 feet high, and 10 feet wide.

The tunnel is the talk of the town. People are trying it out with the same youthful enthusiasm with which they tried out moving staircases in department stores when this American importation was first put into commission some months ago.

Alaska Volcano Appears Ready to Greet Scientist

Seward, Alaska.—Mount Katmai, western Alaska's great internal vent, is preparing to serenade Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, volcanologist, now enroute to the region for a season's study.

For several weeks smoke emissions have been noted, and the throbbing recesses of the Aleutian islands, where there are more than forty active volcanoes, cast red reflections into the night skies. Eighteen years ago Katmai hurled forth masses of ashes and completely buried the surrounding country.

Youths Seem to Have Odd Ideas of History

Examiners at times die with a sigh of melancholy some of the absurd answers they receive. Under this heading, Australian schoolboys take the second place in American rounds.

Here are some snippets taken from letters sent at an examination of the graduating class of a Sydney high school: "The British admiral, Sir Francis Drake, is famous for having discovered the invisible armada," and "In the European monasteries of the Thirteenth century the monks had tea in common. This was their principal distraction. Soon they visited the theater or the cinema."

One boy answered the question, "What was the chief event in the reign of Queen Elizabeth?" with the words: "Under the reign of Queen Elizabeth parliament often implored the Queen to get married, something that parliament never asked of her father Henry VIII. It is true, of course, that in the latter case the intervention of parliament was not absolutely neces-

Their back is convex from the shoulders to the root of the tail and their forehead is slightly concave. Also the brain capacity is larger than in the African species, thus making the head shot far more deadly. An Asiatic elephant charging is easily stopped with a bullet in the forehead.

To my mind, the elephant deserves the name of King of Beasts more than does the lion or the tiger. He fears only man, and that not always. He is the unchallenged master of the jungle and, confident in his enormous strength, leads among its denizens a peaceful existence, fearing none and for Young MissesCostumes for Young Women Follow Designs of Those for Elders.

In dress for the younger set the general trend in the showings for spring reflects the styles for their elders. Every type of costume is shown, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, from the distinctive sports and tailored suits in as many variants as are made for women to the softly feminine outfit with its many delightful accessories.

In the spring suits, frocks and coats the sports design predominates. It is presented in countless models of two-piece suits, most of which are made with plaited or plain skirt and jumper. Some of these are of one material and color, others have skirts of plaid goods and jumpers or blouses of figured material; still others are in plain material in two shades, and some even use contrasting colors.

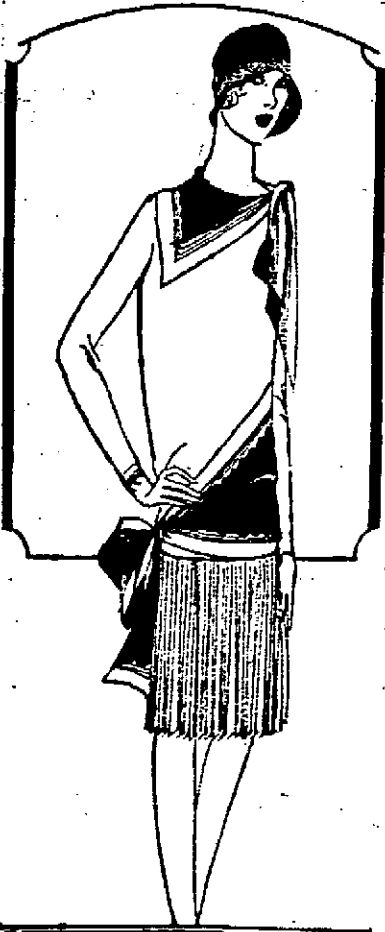

This most informal among the suit styles is made in many different types of dress goods. Jersey, which had a popular flare two years ago and then seemed to give place to the lightweight wools and the crepes, is again a distinctive feature and is shown to be in every way adaptable to the straight, simple two-piece suits that fit best the slim, boyish figure.

These suits, made for outing and general wear, are shown in the stouter stuffs, in loosely woven twills and basket patterns, in firmly woven jerseys of all wool or wool and silk, and in the knitted fabrics. An especially large variety of knitted goods has been perfected to meet the requirements of different occasions. This has a more formal aspect than when it was first brought out, and many charming variants of it are shown in both plain and patterned woolsens.

Addition to Waistcoat.

The first step in elaborating the spring suit for misses and juniors was the addition of the waistcoat, to be worn with jacket and skirt or with the three-piece, consisting of jumper, skirt and coat. In suits of both these styles the blouse or sweater is invariably figured or striped, and the coat and skirt are of a plain color. These are shown in jersey and knitted wool and wool and silk, and in the kashas, tweeds, wool crepes and the different variants of silk crepe. These suits are chic and practical and sum up all the prettiness and charm in the season's colors.

The bodice, whether made like a sports sweater, a jumper or a soft blouse, strikes the decorative note. When knitted goods and jerseys are used stripes are worn about the bottom, or as a yoke across the top, or a pattern in the front, gay colors being chosen to go on a plain ground, or else the same color as that of the jacket and skirt. This combination, appearing in the earlier exhibitions of spring styles, has gone so well that it largely guides the designing of other styles. Careful study of color harmonies has produced delightful costumes for misses in which yellow, blue, red, white and black in stripes and

A shade more dressy is the design of a new three-piece, to be made in lightly woven wool goods or crepe, the blouse of which is elaborated with needlework, cross-stitch, embroidery or applique. It is most successfully done in the heavier crepes, such as flat crepes, canton crepe or a firmly woven crepe de chine. Skirts for this type of costume are plaited all around like a kilt or made with clusters of plaiting at one side or in front. In one model the skirt, which is of heavy crepe, flares slightly, and in another it is plain at the sides and back and has a panel gathered in front. This design works out equally well in the fine kasha woolsens, poplins and wool crepes.

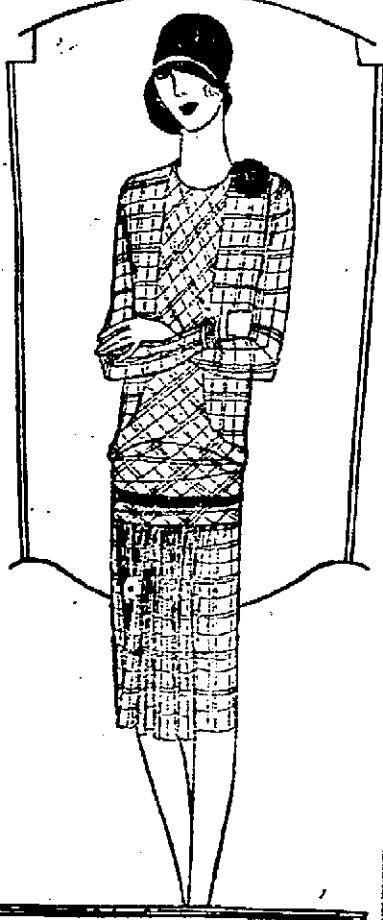

The jacket of the suit is necessarily informal in cut. It is usually short and loose or has a slight suggestion of being that fatally hints at the normal waistline. Tuxedo coats are shown in many models, giving a comfortable smart blazer effect. They have either tailored collars or one of the new cravat scarfs and pockets.

Printed Goods Popular.
Printed silks and crepes, which are widely popular this season, are used in great quantity for juniors and misses in many different types of dress. In a large collection from a house devoted to garments for young women the most conspicuous spring model is the two-piece. In this, printed and plain crepes are combined in the reverse of the usual order, the skirt being made of printed material finely plaited, and the jumper, or blouse, of whatever style, of plain material.

In a suit of apple-green crepe de chine the skirt is printed in a small, quaint pattern of blue, violet and gold on a green background, and a belted blouse, cut hip length and laid in plaits, back and front, has somewhat the pattern of a Norfolk. With this little model a triangular Deauville scarf in the pattern of the skirt is knotted about the neck.

Batik is revived in crepe with lovely colors. These are softer, more subdued in tone than the batik materials that were introduced a few years ago in vivid hues. In a Parisian model designed for a girl of sixteen a bodice that blouses slightly over a narrow belt is made of batik crepe in blues, tan and green, and is worn with a skirt of plain blue plaited crepe.

Floating panels and inserted godets that lend a fluttering grace to the skirts of dance frocks are shown in some of the dainty printed chiffons that are made in delicate shades and bright flower patterns. Side clusters of plaits, gathers, or jabots are expected to be fashionable for summer in frocks of crepe, pussy willow, indestructible voile and all of the georgette and chiffon types of fabric. Voile will be very good for all the dressy frocks.

Bolero Is Being Used.

The bolero is being used in a frock of Chanel violet flat crepe. The model has a plain bodice front and bolero jacket that swings loose at the back and longer on one side. Capes are shown on a number of the latest frocks, a favorite model being cut semicircular to fit closely over the shoulders and about the neck. Few of the plain voile and crepe frocks are made without trimmings of needlework, fagoting, tucking, stitching or banding.

food by natives of Africa, and southern negroes relish the tails of alligators, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. In the West Indies fish eyes are regarded as a delicacy. Jellyfish are eaten in Japan and, in many places of the world, squid and octopus are valued for food. In Polynesia a sea worm, the "palolo," which averages about 16 inches when fully grown, is caught and prepared into an appetizing stew. Sentiment is against snakes, but they are eaten in some places and travelers testify that they are often very tasty. Hawks, herons and parrots are commonly killed for food in parts of the tropics.Not When, but How Much?An extremely successful business man was giving an address on "Commercial Acumen" to a class of students.The business man, in speaking of his career, mentioned a certain company which had been wound up on account of its shady practices."Of course," he said righteously, "as soon as I realized that there were possibilities of dishonest profit being made, I got out of it."One student rose with an air of interrogation."Er—will you finish the sentence?"
he asked. "How much did you get out of it?"—Story Stories.Set Camel Before WifeThat a camel is worth more than a wife was the declaration of a native of Egypt who recently offered both to an English clergyman. He first offered the wife for the equivalent of $20.
"Why do you want to sell her?" he was asked. "She is old and fights," was the inconic reply. "Then she would fight me," said the clergyman. "No, not an English gentleman," was the answer. The offer being refused, the native then offered the camel for $100.
Asked to explain the difference in prices, he replied curtly, "Camel better than wife."

Stonewall Jackson as Sized Up by Pickett

General Pickett, whose Civil war letters have recently been published, has expressed himself to his wife as the character of Stonewall Jackson.
His comment is particularly interesting because of Allen Tate's biography of Jackson."Lawton, who is one of his generals, says Old Jack holds himself as the god of war, giving short, sharp commands, distinctly, rapidly, decisively, without consultation or explanation.
Being himself absolutely fearless, and having unusual mental and moral, as well as physical courage, he goes ahead on his own hook, asking no advice and rejecting interference. Heplaces no value on human life, caring for nothing as much as fighting, no less in the praying. Illness, wounds and all disabilities he defines as inefficiency, and indications of a lack of patience. Suffering from insomnia he often sees his men as a motive and when he can't sleep calls them up marches them out a few miles, then marches them back. He never praises his men for gallantry, because it is their duty to be gallant and they do not deserve credit for doing their duty.
"Well, I only pray that God may spare him to us to see us through. If General Lee had the northern resources, he would soon end the war;
Old Jack can do it without resources."
—From a Minutes Book by Dr. Belletia.

No Government Break in Republic's History

An interregnum is a break in the continuity of government authority; a period during which the functions of government are suspended or vested in a temporary executive. Such a condition, says the Pathfinder Magazine, has never existed in the American government since Washington assumed the Presidency under the Constitution. In each case when the President has died he has been succeeded immediately by the vice presdent.Some people speak of March 4, 1869, as an interregnum. The Constitution says that before the President shall assume the duties of office heshall take a prescribed oath. March 4, 1869, was Sunday and Zachary Taylor did not take the oath until March 5. But of course he was President and could have taken the oath any minute during that time.
Likewise the brief period between the death of Harding and the taking of the oath by Coolidge might temporarily be called an interregnum.Generator and MotorThe bureau of standards says that a generator is used to generate electricity. A motor turns electrical energy into mechanical energy. The same machinery may be used as either a motor or generator.

Bannon Received Sixteen Carloads

During the past few months the E. F. Bannon Plumbing, Heating and Contracting Company of 14 and 16 Andrew street, received for their various operations which they have under way sixteen carloads of material besides many tons of less than carload shipments.

For the city hall job alone there was two cars of steel boilers, one car of pumps, tanks, etc., one car of radiators, one car of wrought iron pipe, one car of Ric-Will conduit, and a car of cast iron pipe.

For the Glasco school they received one car of boilers and radiators, car of sheet iron, car of vent and a car of pipe. They also received a car of pipe covering and a car of pipe fittings and valves and three cars of tile pipe, two of which were delivered to the county of Ulster. They will also have several cars of material delivered at Unadilla by the D. & H. railroad for the new Treadwell school for which they have the contract for installing plumbing, heating and ventilating.

This is perhaps the largest number of cars received by any plumbing company within such a short period of time along the Hudson river.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

LOCATION

THE vast majority of people prefer to live on hillside, where they can look out upon at least a little part of the world.

Constantly you hear men talk about the "view from my window."

Not long ago I overheard a little working girl boasting to another that from the flat where she lived she could "see right across the roofs of two streets of tenement houses to more tenement houses on beyond."

"I love to sit there, and just look out," she said.

Location is always an important factor in life.

Always the most expensive building sites are those which command a view.

The first thing a man newly come into a fortune thinks of is to buy a home which is surrounded by extensive grounds, so that he need never more know that shut-in feeling which has been his since birth.

Yet many of the owners of beautiful park-surrounded homes, where they may look through vistas of trees to the sea or mountains, are still shut in, as far as life is concerned.

It is education and thought which give people the real vision which counts, the ability to look back across the years with the eyes of history, and to look on the activities of mankind through the eyes of intelligence and understanding.

Only the people who have taken the trouble to read and think are quite free from mental blindness.

To these the locations of their roofs matter little.

The boy, Chatterton, could see more in his attic than many a magnate can from his mansion.

Every attic is filled with windows, if one knows how to use them. Reading makes a seeing man, as well as a full man.

Reading plus reflections puts one on a mountain top, and enables him to see beyond oceans, and over mountain chains, and to understand and enjoy the life of the whole world.

But, unhappily, most of us still are content to dwell within walls, to shut out all the wonders and delights that we might well be looking upon, simply because it is difficult to study, and distasteful to think. We are content, if we look out at all, to look out on a few streets, or perhaps a lake or across a river, while we might be looking back on the struggles of humanity from the time history began, or even a little—as yet a very little—forward into the future.

Education means a favorable and commanding location in the world, and is worth more to us than any mountain top or seaside residence, for by means of it we see all humanity pass and repass—and though we fall on evil days and are plunged into poverty, no affliction—not even blindness—shall ever take that ability away from us.

Peculiar Way Deadly

Curare Poison Works

"Curare is the deadly poison that tips the arrows of the South American Indians," the explorer said. "A pin prick from one of their tiny and slow-moving blow-pipe arrows tipped with curare will kill a peccary, a jaguar or a man."

"On the Amazon one day my Tucanos killed a monkey. The piece of monkey that was served to me afterward happened to contain the wound. There it was, the ragged curare-filled wound made by the blow-pipe arrow. I cut that bit away, you bet, but a Tucano snatched it up, swallowed it and laughed in my face."

"How is it," I asked him, "that you can eat without harm the poison-loaded flesh of the birds and animals that you kill with your curare-tipped arrows?"

"For answer—and a very good answer it seemed to me—the Tucano took a pinch of curare from his pouch; enough to kill a dozen persons; and rolling it into a ball he swallowed it down with his monkey meat and manioc."

"Then I understood. Curare is a poison that must be injected directly into the blood. It can be eaten and digested with impunity."—Springfield Union.

Many References to

Cucumber in History

All the world seems to have a "hankering" for cucumbers. About 10,000 carloads are shipped to market annually. This is in addition to those grown in greenhouses and small truck patches and marketed locally, also those grown for home consumption.

There are historical references to the cucumber 3,000 years before Christ. It is generally supposed to be a native of India, and was taken to China in 86 B. C. Cucumbers were known to the ancient Greeks and Romans. Pliny mentions their forced culture. They were grown by Columbus in Haiti in 1494. There is a record of their production by the Indians in the sections now occupied by Montreal, Canada, and by Indians in Florida. Capt. John Smith speaks of growing them in Virginia. Rev. Francis Higginson tells of seeing them in Massachusetts in 1639.—Peter H. Stealing in Natural Republic Magazine.

Lucky Child

Some people are born lucky, even in small things. The child had asked for money for gum.

"No," said mother.

"For candy, then?"

"No," said mother. "I shall not give you any money today to spend on such things." And she went on brushing the grownup daughter's spring coat which was hanging on the line. She quickly turned a pocket inside out to get rid of the accumulated dust—and then dumped a package of gum and a fudge bar.

"O-o-o-o!" said the child in delight—and with one pounce she scooped up gum and candy. "And you can keep your old money!"

"It seems absolutely impossible to discipline some children," murmured mother. "For the gods are always on their side."—Springfield Union.

Sat Right Down

Patrons of a local theater, seated behind a young woman who mistook her purse one evening, missed a part of the photography, because the woman stood up to conduct her search for the lost article, but then enjoyed a little unintentional comedy which other patrons missed.

It was during a court scene put on by the Vitaphone, and the court was hearing parties in a separate support action. Those seated behind the young woman searching for her property were getting fidgety when the judge rapped his gavel, and ordered, "Order in the court, sit down."

The woman was so surprised that she sank back into her seat, and there she discovered the missing purse, where it had fallen. — Springfield Union.

Suspend Hornsby For Five Days

New York, June 15 (AP).—Charged with responsibility for the bottle throwing that marred yesterday's game between the Braves and St. Louis Cardinals at Boston, Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Braves, today was ordered suspended for five days "for inexcusably bad conduct on the ball field." The suspension was announced by John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

In the reports upon which the league executive based his action Hornsby was held accountable for arousing fans at Braves Field to the point where they directed a barrage of pop bottles at Umpire Pflanz. The disturbance occurred in the fourth inning and followed the banishment of Hornsby from the game by Pflanz for protesting the umpire's calling him out on strikes.

Hornsby was unhurt by the bombardment.

EX-CHAMPION IS THEATER PORTER

"Barbadoes Demon," Once King of Welter, Through.

Joe Walcott, the "Barbadoes Demon," who held the welterweight title of the world for eight years (1903-1907), is down and maybe out.

The ex-champion, who was once worth a fortune, is today a porter at the Imperial theater on West Forty-fifth street, where "Sunny Days" first opened, says a New York dispatch to the Kansas City Star. "Sunny Days" has nothing to do with the story, but one of the stars in that show, Billy B. Van, a comedian, has.

Thirty or so years ago, when Walcott was champion, he and Van joined a vaudeville act headed by George Dixon, the featherweight champion and toured the country. The persons' fortunes of Walcott, Dixon and Van and the others in the act ran up and down, and Walcott and Van hadn't seen each other since, but they met recently.

Lumbago and rheumatism, family troubles and a broken arm and other ailments have helped to score a perfect knockout over the "Black Cyclone."

Walcott arrived in 1923 from the West Indies, the son of a farmer. He worked in New York city for a short while as a laborer, and his enormous strength and likeness soon attracted the attention of Tom O'Rourke, an old-time fighter. In two years he became welterweight champion of the world when he scored a knockout over "Rube" Ferns at Fort Erie, Canada.

Walcott is now fifty-seven years old and still a sporting fan. Until he took over his Imperial theater job which Van landed for him the other day Walcott used to patronize the house every Saturday night at the Common wealth club. But his new Saturday night duties will hereafter keep him away from his favorite "ringside balcony" seat, for Saturday night is the busiest in theater circles.

It is a bit of drama to observe how fortune has played with Van and Walcott. Van is today a millionaire and one of the richest actors on the stage. He is mayor of Newport, N. H., a bank director and proprietor of a large soap plant. In the days when Walcott was the chief attraction, Van was merely a minstrel entertainer who struggled for his weekly Saturday night pittance.

While Van and Walcott did not see each other for about a quarter of a century they feel obligated to each other for many past favors and Van promises to keep a watchful eye on the champion who was.

Quinn's Advice to Youngsters

JACK QUINN, who admits that he is forty-three years old but who is a few years older according to a number of statistical experts, has been pitching ball for twenty-five years, and sixteen of these were spent in the major leagues.

The other day a newspaper man asked Quinn to name some of the essentials that would be of help to a novice pitcher and, among other things, Quinn said:

Get plenty of rest and sleep; eat good plain food and drink plenty of water; practice control with the fast ball; after you master the fast ball work on the curve; later on work on the slow ball and change of pace; practice fielding your position and covering first and spend hours in this practice; use your most effective form of delivery in the pitcher's; indulge in batting practice and develop speed. Try to be a ball player as well as a pitcher; never lose heart over bad breaks or errors; never criticize your teammates for weak support; be confident.

Why confine this advice to novice pitchers? There are many in the major leagues who could profit by Quinn's words, writes H. G. Salsinger in the Detroit News. At least 80 per cent of the pitchers in the American league would be better pitchers if they followed Quinn's advice.

All that we ever came in contact with get enough sleep and rest. We always thought that some of them did nothing else but.

Many of them do not eat the right kind of food nor drink enough water.

The majority spend no time in trying to extend their pitching repertoire. They do not work for better control. They are not trying to improve their curve ball, or their slow one. Many lack a slow ball as many lack a change of pace.

They do not practice fielding unless specially compelled to by the manager. They believe fielding is the job of infielders.

Morality compelled his pitchers to spend hours practicing the business of covering first and it was surprising to see how few were able to do it properly.

When it comes to pinches the average pitcher is generally so confused that he will use anything but his best delivery.

Most of them lose heart over errors or bad breaks.

Criticizing their teammates is one of the best things they do. Ball players are notorious for producing allis but the pitchers produce most of them.

Confidence is one thing few of them develop. They lack confidence in certain deliveries. If they followed the rest of Quinn's advice they would automatically develop confidence.

And Quinn can back up his advice with 16 years of major league pitching.

Jack Quinn.

Andy Cohen Gives Boys Lecture on Ball Game

Andy Cohen, spectacular young second baseman of the New York Giants, has carved a niche for himself in the hearts of Chicago youth.

During the Chicago-New York series more than three thousand boys crowded and fought their way into a hall to hear Hornsby's successor give advice on how to break into professional baseball. Most of the boys were members of teams entered in the American League Junior Baseball league.

And Andy's advice was to subordinate everything else to baseball if one wants to make that his career. "Think baseball; talk baseball; pay no attention to anything else," was the advice of McGraw's newest "find."

Wins on Mandell

Instead of a deficit, Tex Rickard has been agreeably surprised to find out that he realized a profit of about $20,000 on the much-postponed bout that saw Sammy Mandell ward off Jimmy McLarnin's bid for the "Rockford Shell's" lightweight title. The photograph shows Mandell.

The Sarah Shank golf course in Indianapolis is crossed seven times in its nine-hole length.

Clyde Ponce, who rode in Germany two years ago, has made his re-entry to the American turf.

Ohio state has a freshman coed candidate for the American Olympic diving team in Rose Poczeck of Cleveland.

Larry Nabholz, who played in the British open, will be pro at a Houston (Texas) country club when he returns to this country late in the summer.

The Federal Committee of Physical Culture, founded in Germany in 1895, now embraces over 30,000 separate organizations and more than 4,000,000 members.

The race between Charlie Paddock, Charles Borah, and Frank Wyckoff during the southwestern Olympic track finals in the Los Angeles stadium June 16, is expected to attract 80,000 fans.

She Knew It

A little miss of four years was sitting on her aunt's lap, when suddenly the aunt leaned down and gave her a big hug, saying: "My, but you're sweet!" The little miss complacently raised her big blue eyes to her aunt's face and replied: "That's what they all think."

BASEBALL NOTES

Gene McCann, Yankee scout, hasn't worn any but white neckties in the last fifteen years.

The way the New York Yankees are going just now, we imagine they could win a train wreck.

Bill Miller, a Chicago semipro pitcher, was released unconditionally by the Cincinnati Reds.

Muddy Ruel, Washington catcher, broke into baseball in 1915, with the St. Louis Americans.

An umpire is suing for divorce. For the first time in his life he had to admit that he guessed wrong.

Bruce Copeland, former Three-Race track pieces for the papers.

Ty Cobb, in the opinion of President Barnard of the American league, is the greatest player baseball has ever had.

The business of turning pitchers into outfielders got a big boost when Frank O'Doul made two home runs in one day for the Giants.

Archie Edwards, a young amateur pitcher of Battleford, Saskatchewan, has signed with the Boston Braves and will report for trial in July.

In the game of May 16, Atlanta versus Birmingham, not a man was fanned by either pitcher and the Bar-on outfielders had but two putouts.

The little boy who used to see ball games free through a knothole has grown up and has better manners. He listens in for nothing over the radio.

"What the other American clubs need," said a New York expert "is more good ball players." What he means is that they really need less Yankees.

Babe Ruth has played in more world series than any other major leaguer. Ruth has struted his stuff in three classics with Boston and five with the Yankees.

It has been decided by the Supreme court of Minnesota that the fabrication of an unnatural knothole in the fence around a ball park is a misdemeanor.

Outfielder Turner Barber is lost in definitely to the Birmingham Barons. Barber made efforts to shake off a case of the flu and then gave it up and went home for a rest.

Dodley Brannon, now with Louisville, continues in baseball despite the fact his father-in-law is a millionaire and has tried persistently to have him give up the game and enter business.

Three players were released by the Hollywood club of the Pacific coast baseball league. They were Art Ja-cobs, young southpaw pitcher; Stanley Casper, outfielder, and Elmer Klumpp, infielder.

Charley Sils, scout for the Chicago White Sox, while in St. Paul, where he saw the Saints-Brewer series, called Oscar Roettger, star first baseman of the St. Paul team, "the best prospect he had seen in the minors this season."

Explaining "Air Pocket"

The army air service says that the term "air pocket" is a popular expression and not a scientific term. That is which people refer to as an air pocket is a local air current usually encountered over cities differing in direction from the direction of the surrounding air.

FIRE DESTROYS SAUNDERS HOME AT EAST KINGSTON

The Charles L. Saunders home at East Kingston was destroyed by fire Thursday. How the fire started is not known as the fire had gained considerable headway when discovered. Word was sent to Kingston for assistance and one of the pumps was sent out but lack of water prevented Chief Murphy's men from rendering any assistance. When the pumper arrived the fire had gained such headway that chemicals were of no avail. The fire communicated to the barn and adjoining sheds which were also destroyed. Considerable furniture was saved by neighbors.

DEMONSTRATE PRODUCTS OF ELECTRICAL RESEARCH

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation is now conducting an exhibition at one of a series of demonstrations in the Community Hall at Clintondale in conjunction with the local Grange. These exhibits are being held throughout the valley for the purpose of presenting a review of the latest products of electrical research and invention.

On July 11, 12 and 13, an exhibition will be held in the Lake Katrine Grange, No. 1065, and again on July 18, 19 and 20 a similar demonstration will take place in the Methodist Church Hall in Woodstock.

The general public is cordially invited to attend these meetings which will open at 2:30 p. m. on the dates mentioned and feature evening programs of special interest.

Nobile and Crew Drift to West

Rome, June 15 (AP).—Word was received in Rome today from General Umberto Nobile's base ship, Citta Di Milano, that in two days Nobile and five members of the crew of the Italia had drifted about seven to the west. The wind had changed to the east.

The base ship said that at 10 p. m. last night, it was in communication by wireless with Nobile's emergency station. Nobile said that because of westerly winds he was about seven miles to the west of the position of 50.35 north, 24.55 east given on Tuesday night. The wireless communication was feeble, the ship reported.

Adult Social Club Outing.

On Wednesday night of this week, the Adult Social Club of the Reformed Church of the Comforter and their friends, numbering 61 in all, held an outing at the Y Men's Camp at Glencliff Lake. A variety supper was served by the ladies of the club in faultless style in the large dining room of the camp. After supper a social hour was held during which all was entertained with a monologue and songs by Raymond Parcell, and piano selections by Paul Barnum. As this was the last meeting of the club until September, the members before adjourning voted to resume the fall and winter activities with a supper at the same place, it being ideal for the purpose.

Kentucky for Smith.

Lexington, Ky., June 15 (AP).—After a day of factional clashes resulting in four fist fights, challenges to personal combat, jeering and heckling of speakers, the Kentucky Democratic convention last night voted to pledge its 26 national delegates to Governor Smith of New York.

Roundout Savings Bank Dividend.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of Roundout Savings Bank, held Tuesday, June 12, a quarterly dividend at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent per annum was declared for three months ending June 30, 1928.

Storm Holds Up Women Fliers

St. John's, N. F., June 15 (AP).—The planes of the two American women heading projected air expeditions to Europe were poised for the take off at two Newfoundland ports today, but there was a strong possibility that they would not get away.

Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist for the United States weather bureau at New York, informed both Miss Mabel Boll and Miss Amelia Earhart that an unexpected storm had developed in mid-Atlantic which may make flying hazardous for several days.

Courtesy Plus

The Chinese have a proverb that one should never mention a rope in the home of a man who has been hanged. Tact and courtesy that extend to an even greater extreme are evinced by the action of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, meeting at Nashville, Tenn., in excluding the subject of "evolution" from its program. A doctrine regarded by many of their hosts as heresy will not be even mentioned by the scientists in convention assembled, says the Philadelphia Ledger. That is their sincere intention. They will try their best to avoid even the slightest suggestion of the evolutionary theory of man's origin and development, but it will be strange if some remark is not made that will offend their superstitious entertainers. For instance, a reference to the education of our ancestors in "the higher branches" might easily be construed as an effort to prove that they lived in trees. But in censoring their program, the scientists have demonstrated, at least, that the theory of evolution is only one among many equally interesting and important subjects for philosophical consideration.

"Smile and be physically and mentally healthy," says a London doctor and quite a lot of other people. And there is a lot in the doctrine, too. But at the same time it is possible to overdo the thing, says the Detroit Free Press. We remember a man who smiled and smiled until he had smiled away all his backbone and was nothing but a jellyfish. He smiled himself from a position of promise and prominence into oblivion and few people who used to know him have any idea whether he is alive or dead. Then, too, there is the chronic gladder with his perpetually genial physiognomy. Did you ever watch one of the breed in the process of going stale? It's an awful sight.

Thrift is a preventive of crime. We need not take the idea wholly without salt to recognize its practical truth and beneficial bearing. Criminals come, like the nursery rhyme beggars, "some in rags, some in tags, and some in velvet gowns." But if great possessions make heartless scoundrels now and then, lack of the ability, or rather of the habits, to lay by for stormy days makes ill-doers of many more, says the Atlanta Journal. The industriousness, the perseverance, the self-control, the forward thinking and forward going which produce and, in turn, are produced by thrift, are towers of strength for character and character is the great bulwark against crime.

Gifts to Lindbergh were so numerous that it may be doubted whether he has had time to study them all. Yet he must in courtesy preserve them unless the swiftly shifting circumstances of the present era develop a magnificent charity warranting heroic contribution to a rummage sale.

The Pittsburgh Post declares that more than half the paragraphs written today are about women. As 96 per cent of the paragraphs are men, it is very natural that they should be entitled to get in a word now and then.

Wealthy Pawnee Indians in Oklahoma are paying $250 for buffaloes on the hoof so they can indulge in the meat of their forefathers. If they bought their steaks in a restaurant they couldn't tell whether they were eating buffalo or wiregrass steer.

The school of journalism at the University of Minnesota frowns on the use of the word "very." A Boston paper once forbade it entirely and reporters went to great lengths to hush up news items about the Very Rev. So-and-so or What's-His-Name.

It has got so that when a food purveyor wants to create demand for his wares he says they are rich in vitamins something or other. And sometimes it seems as if he was charging for vitamins on a gold-mine basis.

One reason adduced in his plea for divorce by an Illinois man was that his wife compelled him to use the guest towels. He is entitled to a divorce with alimony, attorneys' and court charges.

We are informed that young college boys do not call it "kissing" any more. They affix to it an "unpleasant" sound. Horrified elders may preserve their sanity by reflecting that, after all, it must be just the same old passion.

Rainfall This Year Very Heavy

The officials in the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York city reported today that 1.64 inches of water fell Thursday evening within a half hour. The total amount of rainfall for June is now 4 1/3 inches. The total amount so far this year is 23 inches. These figures place the rainfall this year as very heavy and far above the average. The average amount of rainfall for the entire month of June is placed at 4 inches and the average for the first five months of the year is 22.6.

The reservoir is full with the water about one inch from the top of the tank board. The Gilboa dam is still full and overflowing. No water is coming out of the tunnel, which leads from Gilboa to the Esopus creek.

Ensign Kliphouse To Leave Kingston

Ensign and Mrs. Garrett Kliphouse and Lieutenant L. Plew of the local Salvation Army headquarters will leave Kingston on Wednesday, June 13, to take up work at Poughkeepsie. The transfer will be a big promotion for Ensign Kliphouse, who regrets leaving Kingston very much.

"Never have I found folks of a community so kind and considerate as in Kingston," said Ensign Kliphouse today. "My stay of ten months in this city has been a seemingly very short, but very happy one. The work I have operated with me in every way and I surely will miss every one of them. I am heartily thankful to all who have assisted me during my work among the citizens of Kingston and the surrounding communities."

The good work of Ensign Kliphouse while here has been recognized by many. Senator Arthur H. Wickes wrote Major John Gourlay of Yonkers, Salvation Army head, asking that Mr. Kliphouse be left in Kingston. The major's reply was that a man of the local ensign's ability deserved promotion and he would be given a vast opportunity in Poughkeepsie, the biggest working field of the army in the Hudson valley.

A farewell service for Ensign and Mrs. Garrett Kliphouse and Lieutenant Plew will be held at the Salvation Army headquarters on North Front street, Sunday, June 24.

City's Lightning Rods

Perhaps the question of the efficacy of lightning rods has never been fully settled in the public mind. Lightning rods are now to be seen on nearly every house in the city, though it may not be visible to the eye. Every plumbing system has an air vent—a pipe that runs upward to, if not through, the roof. It serves exactly as the lightning rod on the farmer's house.

Coolidge Lauds Herbert Hoover

Special Telegram of Congratulations and Personal Appreciation Upon Reaching Superior.

Superior, Wis., June 15 (AP)—President Coolidge sent Herbert Hoover, Republican Presidential nominee, a telegram of congratulations and personal appreciation immediately upon reaching Superior today.

Praising the personal qualities of Secretary Hoover the President said: "You have been nominated for the most important position in the world. Your great ability and your wide experience will enable you to serve our party with marked distinction. I wish you all the success that your heart could desire. May God continue to bestow upon you the power to do your duty."

Mrs. Coolidge associated herself with Mr. Coolidge's greeting, telegraphing: "The President and I send you and yours our love and best wishes."

Mrs. Coolidge, smiling happily and apparently none the worse for the long trip from the east, was photographed from the rear of the train. She was wearing a chanel red suit with a tan silk hat.

Mrs. Irvine L. Lenroot presented her with a large bouquet of roses and was photographed with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, together with Mayor Fred Baxter of Superior and Mayor S. F. Salvay of Duluth. A welcoming committee, stretching half a block from the train, greeted the President as he alighted while the Superior Public School Band in white played in the background.

True Education

The entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right things but enjoy the right things—not merely industrious, but to love industry—not merely pure, but to love purity—not merely just, but to hunger and thirst after justice.—Roskin.

MOTORIZED MASTS FOR NAVY AIRSHIPS IS NEW INVENTION

Will Revolutionize Handling of Big Airships and Do Away With Big Ground Crews.

New York.—A mobile mooring mast, mounted on heavy caterpillar tractors which is expected to revolutionize handling big airships and do away with large "ground crews" to get such craft in and out of their hangars, is under construction for the United States navy, and will be delivered early this summer at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air base for tests with the dirigible Los Angeles.

It is a three-legged "stub" affair only 60 feet in height, being similar to the "stub" mast successfully used in Panama on the Los Angeles' recent Caribbean cruise except that the latter was stationary.

The movable mast will be used both for "mooring out" purposes on the field and for "jacking" and "undocking" the airship in the huge shed that houses her.

The procedure will be to moor the dirigible to the mast, which will then haul her, tug-like, into the hangar. Included in the "stub" mast equipment is a large pneumatic-tired wheel to which the stern of the airship is attached. It acts as a caster, allowing the ship's tail to swing with the wind but keeping it from moving either up or down. To protect the airship against sudden side gusts of wind that might crush her against the hangar lines will be attached to her sides at points of vantage and secured to tractors running on rails leading into the hangar.

Not only is the "stub" mast far cheaper than the towering structures heretofore utilized at Lakehurst, the Ford airport in Detroit, and elsewhere, but it is said by Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, and other experts to be more satisfactory because it will keep the dirigible near the ground, where air currents are less treacherous than at an altitude of 100 feet or more.

If the movable mast proves a success it will solve one of the greatest problems which has baffled lighter-than-air experts in establishing airship travel on a commercial basis, ground handling heretofore having been "an almost prohibitive factor for private operation."

Women Lag in Inventive Skill, London Discovers

London.—Is it true that women have little constructive or inventive ability?

The proportion of women applying for patents for inventions seems to point to this.

As against 3,000 men there are only 500 women, and although women are engaged in almost every trade and profession and are numbered in the thousands as drivers of motor cars, their inventions are almost entirely domestic and labor saving.

Men, on the other hand, contribute ideas that range from a new life saving raft, complete with cabin for rough weather, to a hair clip for attaching a "switch."

They too, however, have some bright ideas on domestic problems.

One man has invented a new dust receptacle which opens and closes automatically and is so designed that the dust from the head of the mop cannot escape into the room.

Perhaps one of the most welcome inventions of 1923 is today in a new form—solidified and contained in a small case. It will be invaluable for traveling and can quite well be carried in a handbag, where it is hoped it will not be confused with a lipstick.

Gardeners will delight in a weapon for the destruction of dandelion roots. It is on the principle of a suction cork extractor, and lifts out the whole root most effectively.

An electric kettle that automatically cuts off the current when it is beginning to boil dry will be a boon to the absent minded and a preventative of fire.

English Girl Hiking

From France to Turkey

Paris.—An English girl not yet of age, Miss Jessie Reynolds, has set out to walk from the Atlantic coast of France to Constantinople with less than $30, and she expects it to last all the way to Turkey, a six months' hike.

Miss Reynolds is carrying a little tent and sleeping bag and expects to sleep under the stars. But she has found French country families so chivalrous and interested in her mission that almost every night she is invited to accept board and lodging free.

She started from Bayonne, in the French Basque country.

Armies of Field Mice

Menace Western Crops

Walla Walla, Wash.—For the first time since 1877 a plague of field mice is causing serious losses on the cattle and sheep grazing ranges in southeastern Washington and western Idaho. Thousands of field mice have been observed on a single acre of land. It is believed the scarcity of coyotes, owls and snakes has permitted the overthrowing of nature's balance and field mice to increase at a rapid rate. A poison campaign is planned as soon as the arsenic can be distributed over the affected area.

Brushing Ship Hulls

An Australian company has introduced in England an ingenious method of cleaning the outside of the hull of a ship. The invention has been in successful operation for a number of years in Australia, and has been tried at Southampton and Plymouth.
The apparatus is mounted upon a suitable frame, which can be suspended from the side of a boat. It consists of a cylindrical brush about 5 or 6 feet in length, held in a framework which also supports an electric motor and a propeller. The purpose of the propeller is to keep the brush pressed against the side of the ship. The case carrying the apparatus contains also a four-cylinder motor directly coupled to a dynamo. The current produced serves to raise and lower the carrying frame as well as to drive the propeller and brush.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 15 (AP).—Heavy buying of the oil shares, particularly by the Standard Oil group, checked a sharp reaction in today's stock market. Opening gains of one to seven points were wiped out by a general selling movement just before midday and in many cases converted into losses equally as large.
Trading was relatively light, indicating that many traders and small speculators had withdrawn from the market, at least temporarily.

Call money was in such plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 5 1/2 per cent that the rate was shaded at 5 1/4 in the outside market, although the sharp reduction in brokers' loans last week was generally approved. There was a rather widespread belief that the recent record-breaking total must be reduced between $399,999,999 and $1,000,000,000 before federal reserve authorities are satisfied.
Further withdrawals of gold for shipment to France in connection with that country's stabilization program sent the New York Federal Reserve ratio to 67.2 per cent, the lowest, with the exception of one week in December, 1927, since 1921.

Accumulation of oil shares was influenced by reports of record-breaking gasoline consumption, and predictions of an early increase in Mid-Continent Crude Oil prices. Atlantic Refining, after dropping six points to 120 1/2, rallied to 127 1/2. Standard Oil of California, New Jersey and New York moved up one to two points.

High priced specialties were rather hard hit in the morning reaction. Case Threshing, Curtiss, Radio and City fell six to eight points below yesterday's final quotations. General Motors, General Electric, International Harvester, International Telephone, DuPont and Delaware and Hudson sold down four to nearly six points.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York City, branch office, 260 Fair street.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Grace J. Austin.

Once upon a time, not so long ago, a nice smiling, stately, stately dark-eyed woman over to Italy sat down by a pretty Italian lake, beautiful as any poem you ever read, and she had beside her long wiles of straw, some dyed in color, and some natural straw color. And she wore, with clear fingers, until the first you know, she had a nice shopping bag, with a clever handle and a substitute for a clasp, all made of the straw. And she kept on making them until she had a nice pile. Then they were packed up, and they came safely across the sea and safely across the land. One of them is looking at Dame Fashion right now, as it stands in front of her on her desk. It is of a beautiful light green shade, with a broad band of the straw color.

And Dame Fashion is going to hope that it is going to be like the house that Jack built; that some day a dress will come to match the bag, and some day a hat will come to match the dress, and another day some costume jewelry will come to match them all. She devoutly pins on her little silver "lucky elephant"—thin as a sheet of paper—that a pretty girl brought her from a journey made, and three times he has been miraculously rescued just as he was about to be lost. So with this new Italian bag—so light, oh, feathers are not in it for lightness, surely the rest of the desired things will come.

Dame Fashion has decided that the word "abundance" gives the keynote to the astonishing beauty of American leading-city shops all over the country. There have been many descriptions given of cold, gray salesrooms abroad, where one object at a time is displayed to a prospective purchaser. None such need apply to Dame Fashion. It is just a glory and a tonic to go into a shop that makes you think of King Solomon's garden for brilliant beauty; a thousand wonderful scarfs; a million (costume) jewels; more and more hundreds of exquisite flowers, to be worn on shoulders—front or back, by your choice—or where any dress-fold seems to need to be caught with a blossom.

And all around and among the glories you can find by searching all manner of clever little things that make living easier. There are poetic mesh-caps in fascinating colors of silk, to be worn by night or day, and warranted to keep your choice "marcel" in perfect condition.

There are curious round coils of colored rubber which look as though they might be used by the fairies when they water their minute gardens. But they are really conveniences for these warm days for those who appreciate the comfort of rolled hose!

Dame Fashion took an immense fancy to a new type of clothes-hamper, to be placed in a bathroom or upper hall. It was tall and round and artistic with top of solid color, and art design in the same color on the round sides. She could just imagine placing one of these after a purchase, and then tuning to it, as an orchestra tunes to the oboe, until a whole second story took its color note from one brand new clothes-hamper!

Tweed Ensemble Makes Chic Traveling Outfit

In these warm days when one plans numerous week-end trips, a tweed ensemble such as this one is a practical addition to one's wardrobe. The three-quarter length coat is simply tailored, with its only trimming consisting of the dark brown silk braid. Smart features are the patch pockets on the coat and the novel stitching on the skirt. Alligator shoes and a beige felt hat complete this costume. It is worn by Gwen Lee, "movie" player in "Bess Broadway," her latest film.

Captain Oleson Talks About Army

Describes Army Organization Under General Belknap Act to Kinman Club—Gives Head of National Preparedness.

The Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel, the luncheon being served in the sun parlor which despite its name proved a delightfully cool refuge from the heat of the day. Between soaps much business was transacted as this is the time of the annual conference of members of the Kiwanis International. This year the meeting is in far off Seattle. The Kingston Club is to be represented by two members, "Abel" James of New Paltz and "Bill" Kukuk, who with their wives have left by train for the opening of the conference next Monday. This has been a big year for Kiwanis and a big convention is expected. The local club has been doing a great deal of work along progressive lines including the care of underprivileged children, so confidence is felt that Kingston will have a good report.

The visiting committee reported that Lucius H. Doty, who had recently undergone an operation at the Benedictine Hospital, has so far recovered that he may receive visitors. Also that Charles A. Lasher is now somewhat improved after his severe attack of rheumatism and is resting at his home where visitors will now be more than welcome.

Captain Oleson's Address

The visitor of the day was hardly a visitor, since during the three years of his detail here Captain Oleson has come in contact both socially and officially with so many of us that he has come to be regarded almost in the light of a Kingstonian. Certainly his efforts with the unit of the National Guard as well as his activities in civic matters have shown him to be a man of the times as well as an efficient military officer. So when Chairman St. John introduced the captain it seemed more like meeting an old friend.

Captain Victor L. A. Oleson, Field Artillery, United States Army, had something to say and he said it in such short pithy sentences that the listeners learned many for the first time just what the General Defense Act really was about. The captain compared the Army to a big business the Army had a central head office and various smaller branch offices scattered according to the amount of work to be done and the population to be served. In the Army they were designated as Corps areas, and were so scattered as to be capable of acting as an independent unit for purposes of defense. Each one of these Corps areas was intended to have stationed within its bounds one division of the Regular Army, two divisions of the National Guard and to also have the skeleton of the organization necessary to immediately organize the trained reserve into three divisions. This then would give in time of an emergency a first line defense that could be immediately operative and effective, a reserve that could be quickly formed so that then the defensive troops could readily be used as offensive owing to the formation of the reserve ready to take their places if they moved on.

The captain then strongly impressed upon his hearers what was his own personal opinion and what he assured the club to be the real opinion of Army officers as a whole, namely that there was no wish for war, but on the contrary, that the more one studied and saw of war and machinations of war the more abhorrent became the thought of war. Therefore it behooved the Headquarters of the Army and the personnel throughout the country to be so well prepared and to have an organization capable of expanding into such an efficient army that it would give pause to anyone lest they should provoke such a machine into actual conflict.

Coming to local conditions the captain described how it was the aim of the local unit to train its members not only in military tactics, but to use them to an end that the young men might learn the lesson of cheerfulness and willing obedience. The experience gained on the drill floor was equally applicable to the great drill of life. Before one can command he must have first learned to obey. It was always the one who learned to receive commands without repetition and quickly and intelligently execute those commands, that finally in his turn was called upon to be the one who should direct the directing. In conclusion the captain quoted the old maxim for non-coms, "A good Taker soon becomes a Giver of orders."

About the Folks

Mrs. Garrett Kilhouse, wife of the ensign of the local Salvation Army headquarters, is satisfactorily recovering from an operation performed recently at the Benedictine Hospital. She is now at her home.

Graduated from Spencer

Emil S. Frank S. and Augustus S. Bannano, who were awarded high University degrees at the George Washington University in Washington, D. C., this month, as stated in Thursday's issue of The Freeman, were all graduates of Spencer's Business School and trained for stenographers by Mrs. Elsie Myers Peltz. Stenography to these energetic young men was a stepping stone to their present success in the professional realm.

Local Death Record

John M. infant son of John and Ella Schmidt, died in this city Thursday, aged five months. Funeral services from the residence of his grandfather, Elmore Carson, 401 Washington avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Nicholas Zimmerman died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Kling, in Highland, on Wednesday, aged 53 years. Besides his daughter, he is survived by a son, Gilbert, also of Highland. Funeral services from the home of his daughter Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in Highland.

Ruth, infant daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Albert D. Deys of Locust Valley, L. I., died Thursday at the Post Graduate Hospital in New York City. The body was brought to Kingston by Undertaker E. A. Kelly and funeral services were held this afternoon with interment in Montrose cemetery. The Rev. Dr. Lucas Roese, pastor of the First Dutch Church, officiated at the services.

Mrs. Della Van Keuren, widow of James L. Niese, died Thursday at her home, 142 St. James street. She was born in Union Center and had been a resident of the town of Exopus until about eight years ago when she removed to Kingston and made her home with her daughter, Miss Lillian Niese, who survives. She is also survived by one son, Charles Niese of Port Ewen. Funeral services Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence. Interment in the Port Ewen cemetery. Mrs. Niese was a member of the First Dutch Church of this city, and was held in high esteem by all who knew her.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, June 15.—Mrs. Andrew M. Taylor, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Shults in Modena, has returned to her home on Green street.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Vincent, Jr., of Salem street will leave by auto Saturday for Redland, California, to spend the summer with Mrs. Vincent's parents.

Lock Watchman In Park Building

Stopkie, 18, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by the police, an elderly man engaged in watchman at Hasbrouck street and Delaware avenue by the police. Stopkie was charged with disorderly conduct. This morning the hearing was adjourned to June 16.

According to Volk's story when he visited the park had locked the door to the basement of the main building on the grounds. There were several men in the basement and the door was getting out was a man the door which the boys were.

Volk pointed on the door for some time before he was heard by the men who were passing through the door and they managed to unlock the door and release the watchman.

Volk alleges that Stopkie was one of the boys who locked him in the basement.

Six Ulsterites Cornell Graduates

Anna Gasool and Allan A. Merine of Kingston to Get A. B. Degrees—Only One of Six Not a Graduate of Kingston High School.

Six Ulster county residents, two of whose homes are in Kingston, are members of the graduating class of Cornell University this year. Degrees in four subjects will be awarded at the 60th commencement exercises to be held at the university on Monday, June 18.

Anna Gasool of 298 Clinton avenue and Allan A. Merine of 11 Linderman avenue are the two Kingstonians who will be given degrees. Both will receive the honors as bachelors of arts. They are both graduates of Kingston High School.

Miss Gasool earned her degree in the arts and sciences course at Cornell. She won the Corson French prize, third year, the Kenney Scholarship and state cash and tuition scholarships. She is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies. The clubs with which Miss Gasool is affiliated are the Le Cercle Francais, Philosophy Club and Graduate Women's Club. Miss Gasool was high honor student in her class at Kingston High School.

Allan A. Merine also earned his degree in the arts and sciences course. He is a member of the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity. As an athlete Mr. Merine represented Cornell as a member of the varsity basketball team from his second year at the institution. He was a member of the freshman basketball team during his first year at Cornell. Mr. Merine while at Kingston High School was an honor student and starred on the varsity basketball team.

Anna K. Dero of New Paltz, who received her preparatory education at the Kingston High School, earned her bachelor of science degree in the home economics course. She is a member of the Sigma Kappa fraternity, was associated with the Women's Glee Club from her second year and gained admission to the honor society of Omicron Nu of which she acted as secretary this year.

Francis G. Davenport of Accord will be graduated as a bachelor of science as a member of the agriculture course. He is a member of the honor society, Hebs-Sa and Forestry Club. As he did while at Kingston High School, Mr. Davenport showed up really well as an athlete at Cornell. He was a member of the freshman rowing crew; the varsity crew during his third and fourth years and the college crew the second year he attended the university. During his third year he was a member of the Remis' cast. Mr. Davenport started in the leading male role in "All of a Sudden Peggy" opposite Margaret Richards during his fourth year in Kingston High School, getting his first start in dramatics.

Verna L. Enderly of Accord studied in the arts and sciences course to get her bachelor of arts degree. She is also a graduate of Kingston High School. While at Cornell she was admitted to the Kappa Delta fraternity. She was a member of the university soccer team during her third year and acted as a member of the Sophomore Coedition committee.

John Allhusen, Route No. 1, New Paltz, who received his preparatory training at the high school there, will receive the degree of electrical engineer. He is a member of the Tau Beta Pi and HKN fraternities. He was admitted to the Officers' Club. He won the Padgham Scholarship and the Wentz Scholarship. As an athlete he was a member of the "W.C." freshman wrestling team, varsity wrestling squad during his third and fourth years at the university.

St. Remy Supper. The ladies of the St. Remy Reformed Church will serve a salad supper with strawberry shortcake on Tuesday evening, June 19. Everyone will be welcome. A cordial invitation is given to all.

What some of us don't understand about this "companionate marriage" idea is how it differs from the old-fashioned kind where the better half took in washing or hemstitching and charged the other party for his keep.

It probably didn't occur to grand-father, when he was a swain, to chalk so-called funny wise cracks all over the buggy he owned. Had he put them there grandmother would have refused to get into the vehicle.

Velvet Is Liked for School Frock

Sports Types in Jersey With Plaited Skirts; Chiffon for Evening.

Paris lately has become an excellent criterion for the autumn school wardrobe. Once its product was too elaborate—too sophisticated. But today, declares a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, those old barriers are mostly broken down—probably the French computer these years is more ingenious than her American sister. At any rate you will find an excellent selection for your own daughter among the numerous frocks that the haute couture has designed for a petite Parisienne.

Unlike many English schools with dressing restrictions which imply uniforms and a minimum of dinner dresses, French girls have much broader latitude and may center upon personal taste combined with the mode. This autumn promises numbers of sports types of frocks in many varieties of jersey with plaited skirts in a plain color, and the jumper horizontally striped in a brighter hue. The coat, too, may match in jersey, or an extra heavy tricot, made on the simple straight lines which Paron adopts for one of these smart models which he gives full-length revers.

Frock With Flaring Hemline. Martial et Armand's chemise frock with flaring hemline is a happy choice for the schoolroom, whether one selects it in beige, navy or one of the new brown shades in a wool marocain or poplin. Cotton velvet serves as a popular medium for frocks, coats and suits. Doeillet makes an attractive little suit in black velvet and trims it with narrow bands of snakeskin which cover the two buttons at the low, close collar—the only closing of the little jacket which flares slightly. The satin blouse worn with it is trimmed in snakeskin, too.

The sensible and smart school wardrobe could not possibly be complete without one of the new raincoats. Martial et Armand make one in a yellow and green marbled design in which the collar has special interest, as it is quite flat, yet crosses in front in a most youthful manner.

The evening frock should be either plaited chiffon or a gold striped silk; but if the older girl wishes to be more alluring still, she chooses one of the silvered brocades in delicate tones, combined perhaps with peach or blue or delicate green. Ruffles, tiers, panels and full-length cascades continue along the lines of least resistance in fashioning the evening frock. A simple bunch of blossoms on the shoulder often serves as the sole decoration, but for chic these must be in the tone of the frock. Pale pink satin is used by Martial et Armand in an evening frock which takes its decorative scheme from dried lizard worked like pink marguerites with the stem and leaves in silver.

In the limitless wardrobe which the schoolgirl so often demands the short fur coat is an interesting adjunct, which should be built on simple, straight sports lines in shaved lamb—gray or beige—or in degrade gray astrakhan.

Emphasizes the Underarm. Among the details which point out new clothes, there is a marked tendency to emphasize the underarm in frocks as well as coats. This is nau-ally worked in bands of varying widths and is repeated frequently in models by Jenny. Another interesting treatment which Jenny develops in sports types of frocks is the arrow-like belt which commences at a level near the hip and rises to its pointed end, well up on the frock. Her rolled waistline is quite new and the padded bolster effect brings relief in the world of sports types of clothes, for it breaks that even line from shoulder to hip.

From freshman year through senior days the cape in tweed, built in a big flare, facilitates chic transit across the campus, while caplets of numerous descriptions direct the silhouette of the coat. Paton accomplishes this ingeniously by making side caplets in the back much shorter than we have ever seen, or, again, he throws one around a velvet coat so that the sleeve is uncovered on one side only. Jenny for bands a deep circular type of caplet which extends down the back and seems to vanish over the shoulders in front.

Remembering that in sports assemblies your daughter's student wardrobe must be for the purpose of use at the school year. And then, may be to tempt your Paris selections with a little old-school discretion.

Feature Higher Waistline. As a comparison place to the longer skirt, the Paris autumn showings are also featuring a higher and well-proportioned waistline. It is evident that during the many years of the knee-length skirt it was difficult, and almost impossible, for the haute couture to feature anything but a low waist. Indeed, so close together were waist and hemline that their proximity accounted in a large way for the glossing over of the once essential line of demarcation.

Last season saw a general return of the higher waistline. Higher, of course, was only a comparative term—last year's line was high only in comparison with the acutely low lines that had preceded it. From present indications, when some one says high waistline this year reference will be made to the normal line. That, at least, is the inference you must draw from the accounts of the full openings in Paris.

The raised waistline is the salient characteristic of the Tahbot autumn offerings. It is featured in every branch of her exhibition—it appears in evening frocks, in daytime dresses and throughout the sports mode. Although it never goes higher than the normal haven, it usually reaches that point and seldom falls more than an inch or two below.

Wool georgette, silk georgette, wool crepes and, of course, the inevitable velvet are the dominant fabrics of this collection. Several fur models are incorporated, and these place emphasis upon shaved lamb and broad-tail.

Others Give Approval. Lucien Lelong announces that the essence of his current autumn collection is sophisticated simplicity. While incorporating as many of the tendencies of modern art as he can, Lelong, nevertheless, keeps away entirely from any suggestion of the ornate. Diagonal seamings and bandings accent the waistline, which, while it characteristically falls a little short of its normal habitat, nevertheless is markedly raised over last season. In direct opposition to most of the other Paris designers, Lelong favors a series of blues throughout his new presentation. One shade particularly, to which he has lent his initials, appears in coats, afternoon frocks and sports clothes. It is a greenish sort of blue and is featured in both dark and light shades. Velvet, crepe marocain and georgette are the outstanding fabrics. Many patterned velvets are used, and it is a noticeable feature of the collection that they are generally offered without trimming of any sort. Women and pointed designs are employed—effects done by Bianchini and Dunbar—and these, almost without exception, favor small patterns. Apparently the girlish, striking prints of last season have been relinquished by the fabric designers.

The house of Gerline, the newest addition to the ranks of the French couture, shows itself to be well in touch with the trend of the moment by giving unqualified indorsement to the higher waistline. This waistline, while falling a little short of its normal sphere, is part of a silhouette which can best be described by the term slender-fall. Its effect is undeniably slender, yet there is unhidden fullness dominating the entire collection. This fullness, appearing entirely on the skirt portion, is unusually massed at the front and is invariably obtained by means of the circular cut.

Sugar Long Esteemed

It is not known who invented, or discovered, sugar. Sugar has, it seems, been known since the dawn of history, but not in all countries. The Chinese appear to have delighted their palates with some sort of sugar for more than 3,000 years; and it was known in India earlier than in Europe, being made from a juicy reed or cane.

Cut Flower Industry

Growing flowers as a business was unknown in America before 1825. The date of the opening of the first florist's shop is not ascertainable, but 60 years ago it was impossible to buy cut flowers in some of our leading cities.

LOCAL MARINE GOES TO NIAGARA

Some of the interesting events taking place in Niagara are likely to be witnessed by Albert J. Melville of Kingston, who is with the latest detachment of U. S. Marines assigned to duty in the Central American republic. His name appears on the list of Marines who recently left Kingston, S. O., for Niagara on the U. S. S. Bridge.

Prior to going abroad the local boy was stationed at Parris Island, S. C., from which place the detachment was assembled for duty with the Second Brigade of Marines in Niagara. It is not known just where he will be located in that country, or how long he will remain, as the Marines are scattered throughout the republic serving at many outposts while they are helping to restore peaceful conditions and to suppress banditry.

Melville is 18 years old, was born

PENNSYLVANIA WILL SUPPORT SENATOR CURTIS

Kansas City, June 15 (AP).—The powerful Pennsylvania delegation today decided to support Senator Curtis of Kansas for vice president in the convention.

The vote of the Pennsylvania delegation was unanimous after Governor Pennock had proposed Curtis's name as a short distance above him. Mrs. Worthington Scranton, the American Falls industrialist, National Committeewoman, had introduced Curtis's name and William S. Pennock, who had explained that he favored Curtis, when apprised of the Pennsylvania action, said he would not speak concerning it "until the nomination is made."

Capture Two Bandits

Paterson, N. J., June 15 (P).—Two of the three armed men who were held up the C. & D. P. train at Paterson last night, were captured a few hours later through the timely efforts of Mrs. Lawrence Lazzari, wife of the proprietor.

PETER DEPAOLO ENTERS A CARWinner of the Big Race in 1925 Will Drive Machine
This Year.

Peter DePaolo, son of the Italian, who was the American racing champion in 1925 and 1927, has just entered a car in the International 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30.

Peter, a nephew of the great Ralph DePalma, in whose speeding tire-prints he has followed and surpassed, will pilot a Red Flying Cloud, marking the entrance of another manufacturer in the most spectacular sport, which not alone provides thrills for thousands of spectators but points

Peter DePaolo.

the way to the refinements and innovations in passenger car construction.

His First Appearance.
DePaolo made his first appearance at the Indianapolis track eight years ago as a grease ball for Ralph De-Palma's immaculate speedsters. He was permitted to join DePalma's stable as reward for an impeccable record in Uncle Sam's army during what has become known as the World war.

Soon he was riding beside the can-ny DePalma, as riding aide, all this being in the days of two seater cars, long before the sleek, projectile type of hurry buggies were in vogue.

Many a trick DePaolo learned as he sat beside his skillful uncle, watching Ralph maneuver his car through 125 miles an hour traffic. Peter got the urge to drive. Ralph, with the wisdom of age, declared he wasn't ready for a pilotship. They disagreed and parted.

Got a Car.
Peter got a car all right. Then he proceeded to smash fences and retaining walls on every track in the country. He couldn't even place in a race—except against a fence.

Just as he had about run out of angels to provide cars for his fam-busting act, Fred Duesenberg, the soft hearted creator of a long line of winning cars, gave him one more chance.

It was all Pete needed. He won the International 500-mile race at Indianapolis in that start in 1925. He gained fame, wealth and confidence.
Ever since he has been one of the foremost contenders and was the American Automobile association champion in 1925 and in 1927.

He is married and has a son three years old.

Cause of Motor Knocks
Explained by Scientist

Motors "knock" because of the very rapid burning of tiny drops of the fuel containing peroxides, formed during compression, believes Prof. E.
N. da C. Andrade, whose lectures on engines before the royal institution in London are attracting wide attention.

Professor Andrade says there are at least 14 theories as to the causes of the "knock" which is so disconcerting to automobilists. He inclines to the one mentioned and says that regardless of the cause, certain chemicals, among which may be named lead oxide and iron carbonyl, if put into the petrol in quite small quantities, will cause it to occur more easily.

As the use of the "anti-knock" substances allows the use of a higher compression, Professor Andrade believes there is a great future for the development of this method of increasing efficiency.

"FRONTIER GARAGES" IN GLACIER PARK

The photograph shows the original "frontier garages" which the Indians along the western border of Glacier National park use to keep their furs in during the snow months.

Fish Stories
It is reported from America that a man drowning in the sea was pushed ashore by a shoal of friendly porpoises. We understand that a meeting of prominent British fishermen has been hastily summoned to think of a better one.—London Economist.

Wonders Grown Silent
If we could have looked out from some Egyptian point of vantage and seen the pyramids rising before our eyes how privileged we would have felt. So should we feel in seeing men wielding the materials of the earth to his advantage in modern skyscrapers.
—Woman's Home Companion.

Spark Plugs Lose
Their Efficiency

Explaining different causes of spark plug deterioration, H. H. Hertzana, research engineer, says in part:

"Gasoline has several elements including sulphur that cause plugs to wear away, and when sulphur is present in an excessive amount, it will hasten deterioration of plug electrodes as well as valves. When the electrode wire is eroded through the action of sulphur, the old system of cleaning with emery cloth or a scraper, is of no avail.

"Another source of deterioration is the iron content in the gasoline which, in time, leaves a brown coating over the insulator. This coating under certain conditions is a good electrical conductor and causes misfiring of the engine because the spark current travels through the coating instead of jumping the gap. This brown coating cannot be cleaned off the insulator by any available means the car owner has on hand, and when it is a very dark brown, the best thing to do is change plugs.

"Carbon is still another trouble.
It can be cleaned from the insulator by running the car a few miles at high speed to heat the insulators to a point where they will burn away the oil and carbon which has accumulated from slow driving. If this does not correct the trouble the best thing to do is change plugs."

Proper Compression in Motor Engine Cylinder

Good compression in a motor car engine cylinder depends on the fit of the rings in the cylinder and on the fit of the rings in the grooves of the piston. Many amateur auto mechanics fail on a ring fitting job because they fail to realize the importance of piston ring fit in the cylinder grooves and the need for a clean groove that will permit the ring to operate without binding. Before you attempt to fit new rings scrape all

A carbon scraper, fashioned from an remove the carbon from the ring grooves in the piston.

carbon and gummed oil out of the piston ring grooves. A simple tool for this job can be made from an old ring. Grind or file off the ends until the remaining portion is about a third of a circle. Sharpen the edges as shown and you have a tool to remove the carbon with ease.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE ITEMS

Germany is now using 2,714 motor buses in the postal service.

Police in Kansas City, Mo., recently tagged 430 unlighted parked cars in the residential district.

More than 981,000 children are carried in 55,860 motor buses between

Accidents in traffic and the havoc of nature causes a loss of life that should prevent thought of a risk of war leading to further sacrifice.

After all there is but little difference in automobiles. A $70,000 car will High pressure oiling systems on many cars demand that hardened and ground parts used for replacement be fitted with sufficient clearance to permit proper lubrication.

Do you use kerosene or gasoline to wash the windshield? When moist, the drops of water will be larger, increasing the glare to the eyes, and the windshield wiper will not function as well.

Dripping water from the front end of the car is an indication of a leak at the water pump. Tighten the nuts or change the same way the shaft turns. One has a right and the other a left-hand thread.

Will Continue
Boyology Course

Permanent Organization is Formed at Banquet Thursday—Speeches and Awarding of Diplomas.

The Boyology course conducted here by Joseph D. Becker, field secretary of the Boys' Life Bureau of the Knights of Columbus, through the courtesy of Kingston Council,
No. 275, K. of C., ended Thursday night with a banquet at McCabe's Restaurant on Wall street. At the session held after the banquet it was decided to form a permanent organization to continue the course for the benefit of Kingston boys.
The society president is Bernard A.
Feeney and John P. Erne is secretary. They were unanimously elected.

The purpose of the organization will be to work for the promotion of Boyology and to apply its principles so that boys of this city may reap the benefits of the recent course, which was taken by men of all creeds. It is the aim of the association to give the boys every opportunity to advance themselves and become good American citizens.

After the delicious meal had been served, Florian P. Wingert, grand knight of Kingston Council, highly praised Mr. Becker for the way in which he conducted the Boyology course. He felt sure that every one who took it benefited much by the experience. He also thanked those who in any way helped in the success of the cause.

Patrick T. Murphy, district deputy and state treasurer-elect of the Knights of Columbus, informed those present that Brother Barnabas, head of the Boys' Life Bureau, was ill at Dallas, Tex. It was moved that a telegram be sent him expressing the regret of Kingston students of the course and the wish for his speedy recovery.

The Rev. Francis X. FitzPatrick firmly impressed all that the course was given in vain if it was to end with the banquet.
Frank Murphy, in giving the vaudeville, touched on the course of Boyology as a most beneficial one.
He expressed the regret of the class.

Green Peas From Holland

Green peas were introduced into England from Holland about 1550. We are told that when Elizabeth was released from her imprisonment in the Tower in May, 1554, she first performed her devotions at the church of Allhallows and then dined at a neighboring inn, at which the principal dish was boiled peas. Shakespeare in "King Henry the Fourth" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Twelfth Night" refers to peas and peasecod time.

Tomorrow is the Big Day!

THE big clock in our window is due to stop sometime tomorrow—and when it does, the hands will point out the two lucky Graduates to whom we are presenting BULOVA Watches.

To the winners—our heartiest congratulations!
To all the other graduates, our sincere good wishes for their future success. Here's hoping that they, too, will be as fortunate as our two lucky winners, some day to own a watch as beautiful, accurate and dependable as the BULOVA.

We heartily recommend the BULOVA Watch to any one contemplating the presentation of a Graduation Gift. It is the Symbol of Attainment—the gift of everlasting beauty and usefulness.
